HISTORICAL NOTES.

Weymouth Families of Note and Curious Bits of History.

Of all the old time families of Weymouth none has a more interesting genealogy and distinguished connections than the Cranches, though they belonged as well in Braintree and Quincy and their stay in Weymouth was short. Judge William Cranch can be claimed as a true son of Weymouth, as his birthplace, though his life work did not lie there. A fine little engraving of him has been placed in the Library with the Fildes collection, and as Weymouth histories mention him only very slightly if at all, it is well that he be recalled on the printed page.

Many notes of interest concerning him and his father, Richard Cranch are preserved in Mrs. Hannah Fildes' old fashioned "Commonplace Book," an institution of those days wherein were entered all kinds of items which it was desirable to remember, including interesting facts, recipes, bits of history and tradition, scraps of genealogy, the new fashions, poetry, and a delightful jumble of all manner of family and village matters. To this generation such old commonplace books are a mine of information and pleasure, enjoyed as the geologist, the archaeologist and historian enjoys and profits by the finds in the "kitchen middens" of the Middle Ages or the refuse of the Roman temples.

Judge William Cranch was the grandson of the famous Weymouth divine, Parson Smith, whose three distinguished daughters shed an extra lustre on his name. His mother was Mary Smith, and his father, Richard Cranch, who came from Kingsbridge in Devonshire, the near relative of Mrs. Fildes' family. Richard Cranch and his wife lived for many years in Quincy and their are distinguished names in town history from 1775 to 1811. Mrs. Fildes' book states that Mr. Cranch dying on the 16th of October and his wife on the 17th, they were buried on the 19th, with Rev. Peter Whitney to deliver the sermon. (Peter Whitney's portrait is now in the Library, copied from a miniature.) At the time of dedicating the Cranch school in Quincy, Mrs. Emily Fildes presented some curious papers of Richard Cranch which are framed and preserved there.

Judge Cranch, says the record, was born in the Smith house in Weymouth on July 17th, 1769, and was baptized by his grandfather in the church the following Sunday. There were two sisters older than himself, Elizabeth, who married Rev. Jacob Norton, succeeding Parson Smith, and Lucy, wife of John Greenleaf of Quincy, who died in 1846, an especial friend of Mr. Fildes. Judge Cranch early showed great ability and was prepared for college by his aunt's husband, Rev. John Shaw of Haverhill. He graduated from Harvard in 1787 at the age of eighteen, which was about the usual age at that time. Several of the old college text books of that date have been preserved in the Cranch and Fildes families.

He then entered the office of Judge Dawes of Boston where he read law for three years, afterwards opening an office in Braintree which was at once successful. The friendship between the Cranches and Dawes was always strong and in writing out this little sketch one of the old Dawes chairs still gives comfort and interest to a branch descendant.

After removal to Haverhill for three years with constantly growing prominence he went to Washington in 1794, where in 1805 he was appointed by President Jefferson, Chief Justice of the United States, and sole judge for the District of Columbia. The Weymouth boy, having reached very great distinction before his country, died in Washington, Sept. 1, 1855. His wife was of the Greenleaf family and there were thirteen children of the union. One daughter, Mary, married into the Norton family; one, Elizabeth, married a son of Judge Dawes, and one, Abbie Adams, married Rev. Wm. G. Elliot of St. Louis, whose son, Rev. Christopher B. Elliot is the minister of Bulfinch Place church in Boston, and deeply in all Cranch matters.

In the old Common Place book, at the close of the items relating to Judge Cranch is another entry which evidently affected Mrs. Fildes very much. This was the death of Miss Lucretia Cowing, which took place in August 1850. The newspaper cutting, from the Liberator, with Mrs. Fildes' tribute to her friend and co-worker, is dark and yellow with age, and reads as follows:

LUCRETIA AUGUSTIA COWING

"In the early, and to many of our friends, sudden departure of our beloved friend, Miss Cowing, whose decease was announced in the last Liberator, the cause of anti-slavery as well as other Christian reforms has sustained a loss which is deeply felt and will not soon be repaired. At the early age of fifteen and in the midst of the trials of the period 1835-6 the fine

IN OUR TOWN.

By Observer.

Been up to Rookingham Fair this week? King Football is with us again.

Begin to save your pennies for the expected six-cent fare?

The Suffrage movement seems to have quite a hold on the Pond Plain people. What this hustling community starts they generally finish two.

Weymouth night at Kincaide's to-night. Don't forget Toby Collins and the Zara Girls, with East Weymouth's favorite Fannie Stetson.

Wouldn't you like to have been on the trip to the National Encampment in Washington with Messrs. Burrill, two Bicknells, Lane, Litchfield, Pease, Loring, Denton and Burrell. The "boys" sure have had a great time so far and they certainly know how to enjoy themselves.

The new card of officers of the K. of C. looks like a hustling aggregation.

Got the new time table changes on the N. Y. N. H. & H. Railroad learned yet? Better make yourself familiar with the winter time table.

Have you been able to fathom just what changes the Bay State Street railway wishes to make in this town? That petition and proposed changes are to much for me.

Are you registered yet? The registrars are ready for you.

This is Gas Week with the Gas Companies.

The ladies club in this section are getting ready for the openings, now that fall is truly with us. Attractive programs are announced by all the clubs for the ensuing year.

I am not conducting a theatre column, but I want to say right here that every moving picture lover in this town should try to make a special effort to witness the presentation of "Carmen" with Geraldine Farrar in the premier role, being presented in the Boston Symphony Hall for a limited run. Boston is the first city to see this mammoth and elaborate production and it is indeed one of the most wonderful photo plays ever put on the screen.

Do you remember the good old days when mother used to make ketchup. Those were the spicy days!

I am told that Rev. James F. Sliney, the Brockton boy, who has been appointed assistant pastor at the Immaculate Conception church in East Weymouth, is one of the most able and best liked priests that ever graduated from St. John's Seminary. The people of the East Weymouth parish are to be congratulated on the appointment of Father Sliney, as assistant to Father Riordan.

Hint for Purchasers of Camels.

A good camel will travel 100 miles in a day. An ordinary camel travels only 75 miles in a day. In buying camels try to select those having both speed and endurance.

From Mansion On King Oak Hill.

Looking down from Mansion Heights, We behold a gorgeous view. Of trees and cots in various shades, Glowing with the sunset's hue.

Beautiful, mysterious, the scene appears, As we stand silently, and look. Peace, contentment, rest and ease, Only disturbed by a rippling brook.

From the nightingale's throat comes sweetly

A joyous, good-night song, Which awakens to life the other birds, And we listen, spellbound, to the throng.

Soon the sun is nearly set, Birds all silent, shadows grow; Softly, sweetly, comes a murmur From a brooklet just below.

We must not break the magic spell, But stand and drink the beauty in; Solemnly, night steals o'er the scene, May peace and happiness reign within.

—JENNIE F. STODDARD, East Weymouth.

mind of Miss Cowing became interested in the cause of bleeding humanity. She listened to the glowing appeals of the eloquent Thompson, and other champions of the slaves, and her heart responded to their trumpet call.

Miss Cowing became in 1835 treasurer of the Weymouth Female Anti-Slavery Society, and from that time her aid to that society and to all other instrumentalities for the furtherance of the Cause has been most cheerfully given and were of an invaluable nature. Her exquisite skill in the most beautiful fancy work which rivalled in some instances the finest painting, gave a high value to the production of her needle, and were by her generously given to the aid of him who had none to help him.

Of a quiet and very gentle disposition, yet possessed of firmness and independence of character in all that called for the exercise of these virtues, she has passed from among us in the midst of usefulness, and when we keenly feel how ill we can spare her skillful aid and meek example.

HAVE THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

George McGregor, With Wife and Two Children in Boat for Two Hours.

George McGregor, his wife and two children, had a thrilling experience Sunday afternoon when he went down the harbor to try out a new boat. McGregor and his family left the Wessagusset Yacht club pier Sunday noon to test the seaworthiness of a new craft. The party cruised around but as the wind and rain increased decided to return home. A 60-mile gale was now stirring things up, when the engine went wrong and McGregor found himself helpless, to battle with the elements. After drifting around he finally landed on the shore of Grape Island. With his wife and children McGregor walked nearly a mile to the house of Charles McCord where they were taken care of for the night. Much anxiety was felt by the friends of the family for their safety but on Monday, McGregor, in a borrowed rowboat, reached home safely after a three-mile row in the face of the gale.

UNIVERSALIST MEN'S CLUB.

Election of Officers, Banquet and Informal Discussion On Bay State Fare Increases Features of Program.

In the chapel of the Third Universalist church of North Weymouth the Men's Club connected with the church held its first meeting of the season on Monday night. Supper was served by a special committee of parish women consisting of Mrs. George Ames, Mrs. Harry Stiles, Mrs. Frank Torrey, Mrs. Roy Vining and Mrs. Manuel Page.

After the supper a business meeting was held at which the following were elected: Alfred W. Gardner, president; Dr. Rufus O. Clark and Harry A. Bailey, vice presidents; and Earl D. Williams, treasurer.

At the informal discussion which followed the supper, relative to increase of fares on the Bay State Street Railway, it was the consensus of opinion that "Zones" asked for by the Company would call for too high a rate for the patrons of Weymouth.

Police Notes.

For several weeks the residents in the vicinity of Lovell's Corner and around Lake View Park have had their gardens visited by someone who helped themselves with out permission Tuesday. Police headquarters was notified and Chief Pratt sent an officer to investigate and he arrested two men who gave their names as Frank Lyons and Joseph Moran for stealing potatoes. They were brought to headquarters and Wednesday were taken to Court at Quincy and sentenced to 30 days in the house of correction at Dedham.

Monday, Police headquarters were notified that Calo Albeto living at Broad St. Place had been missing since Saturday morning. The Chief and his associates are attempting to locate the man but at the last report no trace of him could be found.

Headquarters were notified by telephone on Monday that some one was doing some shooting in the vicinity of Mr. Churchill's house on Union street South Weymouth. A bullet passed close to Mr. Churchill's head striking a cow close by. Several more shots were heard coming from the woods but no more damage was done. Investigated.

A large auto going down Main street South Weymouth on Monday night ran into a fence breaking it considerable. The police were notified and investigated the case.

Headquarters was notified on Sunday night by friends of Mr. and Mrs. McGregor that they had not been heard from since leaving in their boat for a sail down the harbor in the afternoon. Chief Pratt notified the Harbor police as well as the police of Boston, Hull and Quincy.

126 cases of all kinds have been handled from police headquarters since Jan. 1, 1915.

W. R. C. Notes.

The order held a quilting bee in G. A. R. hall last Thursday. Dinner was served at noon. Mrs. Harriett Litchfield with members of the good of the order committee were in charge.

The Good of the Order committee of W. R. C. 102 will hold their next meeting in G. A. R. hall Thursday afternoon Oct. 7 at 2 o'clock instead of on October 14.

Potato Production Small.

Compared with certain other countries of much smaller area and much less population, the potato production in the United States is small.

COMES TO EAST WEYMOUTH.

Rev. James F. Sliney Appointed Assistant Pastor of Immaculate Conception.

REV. JAMES F. SLINNEY

Rev. James F. Sliney, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sliney, 71 Perkins street, Brockton, has been appointed assistant pastor of the Immaculate Conception parish in East Weymouth.

Father Sliney was ordained a priest on May 28, at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in Boston, following his graduation from St. John's Seminary in Brighton. He has been in Watertown since that time as assistant at the Church of the Sacred Heart.

TOWN BUSINESS.

Plans of the Bay State St. R. R. for relocation of tracks on Pleasant street at the widening south of the Porter church were accepted at the Monday meeting of the Board of Selectmen.

Bids for supplying of coal were received from several parties and A. J. Richards & Sons were awarded the contract to supply the town Home, Police and Fire stations and the poor in Ward 3. T. H. Emerson & Co. were awarded the contract for Police and Fire stations in Wards 1 and 2 and also the poor in the same Wards.

Peter J. Healey applied for permission to hold an open air Women's Suffrage meeting in Independence square, Saturday evening, Oct. 2. No objection raised.

Much of the afternoon was spent in considering applications for state and poor aid, a problem which is quite a growing one, as many of the applicants are not towed in Weymouth and cases have to be carefully studied.

At a special meeting of the Selectmen held Wednesday evening the contract for supplying coal to the Fire department, Police station and poor of Ward 4 and 5 was awarded to Alvin Hollis.

Proposals were received from 11 different parties for the $40,000 loan on the Ward 3 school house and E. M. Farnsworth & Co. of Boston were the successful bidder at $101.03. The loan is made in 40 serial notes of $1,000 each at 4 per cent. Four maturing Oct. 1st 1916 and then the same each succeeding October to 1925.

National Gas Lighting Week.

In every city in the United States gas companies have set aside this week to inform the public, by showroom displays and other means of demonstration, of certain wonderful advances which have recently been made in gas lighting—discoveries which bid fair to revolutionize all lighting with the exception of that obtained from the sun.

The "C. E. Z" light is receiving its first national introduction to the public this week. The contrast between the simple inexpensive "C. E. Z" light and the luxurious and artistic Welsbach kinetic lighting bowls illustrates the freedom of design and adaptability possible with kinetic principal of burner construction. It will pay every user of light to sometime this week to the interesting displays and demonstrations at the Old Colony Gas Company showing first national gas lighting.

Under the tour leadership of Quartermaster Albert Fitzmeyer of John A. Andrew Post, No. 15, G. A. Staterooms and meals were provided on the boat, and all were in high spirits as they sailed down the harbor for the sea trip. Sunday, all day and night they were on the water, and arrived at Norfolk, Va., at 7.30 Monday morning. An hour was spent in seeing the sights of Norfolk and then the party boarded special electric for Willoughby Spit, thence Old Point Comfort, across Hampton Roads by steamer, where headquarters were established and dinner was served at Hotel Chamberlin. Under the direction of the conductor in charge visits were made to all the points of interest, including Fortress Monroe, Hampton School, etc.

Leti and the King.
In any list of prolific authors mention should be made of Gregorio Leti, who settled in England in 1680, on the strength of a promise made by Charles II. to appoint him royal historiographer. Leti was then able to boast that in twenty years he had produced twenty historical works and become the father of twenty children. "I hear you are writing a history of my court," Charles once remarked to Leti. "Take care that your work give no offense," "I will do what I can, sire," said Leti, "but if a man were as wise as Solomon he would scarce be able to avoid giving some offense."
"Why, then," rejoined the merry monarch, "be as wise as Solomon; write proverbs, not histories."—London Chronicle.

INCENDIARY BOMBS.

These Missiles of Fire and Fumes Are Loaded With Thermit.
Incendiary bombs differ from ordinary explosive bombs in that they are intended not to scatter fragments over a wide area, but to produce sudden and intense heat at a given point, thus starting a fierce conflagration.
W. A. Tilden describes in Nature one of these bombs. His account is as follows:
The bomb, as a rule, is conical, of ten inches diameter at the base, corded round and has a metal handle at the apex. The base is a flat cup, on to which a pierced metal funnel is fitted, having the ignition device and handle fitted at the top. The funnel is generally filled with thermit, which upon ignition generates intense heat and by the time of the concussion has taken the form of molten metal of the extraordinarily high temperature of over 5,000 degrees F. The molten metal is spread by the concussion. Outside the funnel is a padding of a highly inflammable or resinous material, bound on with an inflammable form of rope. The resinous material creates a pungent smoke.
There is generally some melted white phosphorus in the bottom of the cap, which develops noxious fumes. In some cases celluloid chippings are added and occasionally a small quantity of petrol.

JOGGED HIS MEMORY.

One Elderly Wife Made Sure Her Letters Would Be Mailed.
It was one of those days when it rained without the least warning that a well dressed man stopped in front of a High street business place. He stood with studied look, as though some heavy weight was on his mind. For fully five minutes he stood there thinking, thinking.
Then it began to sprinkle a little, and he raised an umbrella which he was tossing from one hand to the other. He went through his different letters already stamped and placed on the ground. They struck the ground and then he looked at the man and then down past his face. There was a smile, and he picked up the letters.
"I was something my do, but I couldn't do it," he said to the other gentleman.

The spring colt should be as gentle as a kitten by this time and know what a halter is for.

A chick that is stunted because of lack of good food at any period of growth, never is profitable as a layer or a breeder.

With a little more care a good deal of labor might be avoided. Weeds should not be allowed to mature anywhere, least of all those growing on or near the manure heap.

A certain amount of plowing must be done in the fall for the fall crops to be planted. At this season, often, there is time for breaking ground that can be more conveniently done now than next spring.

Too much coarse fodder should not be fed at once. Hundreds of horses are ruined every year by too much hay at a feed. It must be borne in mind that the stomach of the horse is small.

A good teamster and plenty of hard work, working the horse single with kicking strap, is perhaps the best way to manage a kicker. Remember, if the head is checked up high, this will have a tendency to keep his hind end down.

The asparagus beetle has nearly destroyed the asparagus industry in some localities. Many remedies have been suggested, among them applying lime freely over the bed late in the fall, after the tops and bed have been burnt over, with another liberal application of lime in the spring.

There is a great advantage in selecting for potatoes new lands fresh from the forest, or pasture lands that have not been tilled recently, which retain natural richness sufficient to yield a good crop without manure. On such lands the potato is not only less liable to rot than on old lands, but the quality is far better.

In putting down the weeds the first essential thing is to stop the scattering of the seeds. In the late summer and autumn seeds are blown about freely by the wind, and are carried from one state to another by birds. The ideal way is to cut down the weeds before they go to seed; then neither birds nor wind can scatter them.

An advantage of asparagus over annual vegetables is that when once established it will thrive and produce food in one place for many years without the trouble of annual planting. It is a very hardy and resistant plant, not much affected by insects, and disease and it will grow and produce a wonderful amount of tender shoots each spring even with neglect and mistreatment.

The young farmer who expects to enrich his land by some magical process, will be as much disappointed in his expectations as he is ignorant of the process of improvement. A mere theory, even if clearly defined, is idle and useless if unattended with practical observations; and the more practical information a young farmer can acquire, the deeper versed he becomes in the mysteries of his profession.

The fields and gardens produce a large quantity of food for fowls that would otherwise be utilized, while the farm poultry establishment opens a way for the farm boy and girl to make a little money out of a work that is a nature study, interesting and profitable as well, and it is one of the few kinds of employment they can get into that will not tax their physical strength. Properly handled, the farm flock can be made far more profitable than it is now, though on a good many farms the poultry is already paying large profits over expenses of establishment, care and feed.

Those who have silos are to be congratulated this year. There will be some late corn, and this will be largely wasted when it is not converted into ensilage. Corn that reaches the glazed condition will make good food if put in the silo, and yet every man knows that to husk out such a crop means, in most cases, the piling up of a lot of useless feed. It will mold if put in the crib, and the good ears invariably are rendered worthless by contamination with the soft ears. Corn of the same degree of maturity, put in the silo will feed out well and can be used to great advantage for dairy cows.

Loving and Understanding.

One whom I knew intimately, and whose memory I revere, once in my hearing remarked that, "unless we love people we cannot understand them." This was a new light to me.—Christina G. Rossetti.

DESIGNED FOR PRACTICAL USE

Refrigerator Properly Placed Is The Most Important Part of the Home.

METHOD SHOWN IS OF VALUE

Built in Between the Kitchen, Pantry, and Rear Porch, Its Advantages Are Apparent—Whole House Has Arrangement That Is Highly Attractive.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

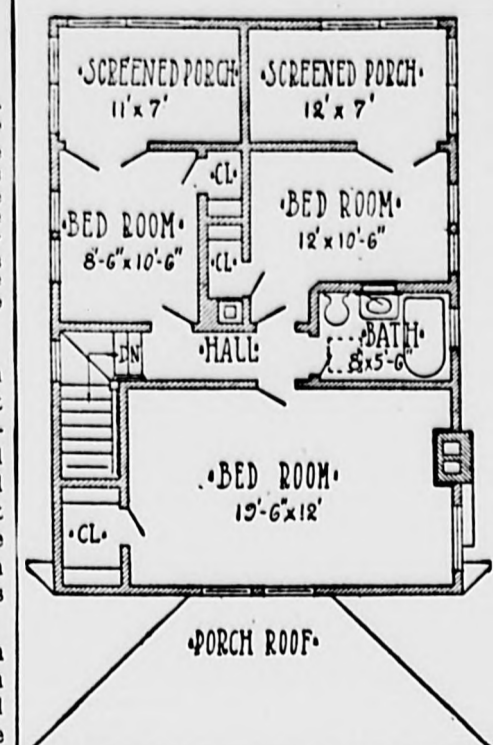

The fireplace, with its cheery, open fire, has often been called the heart of the home, but the refrigerator hidden away in some dark and dismal nook is the stomach of the home and is just as important as the heart, at least. The location of the humble refrigerator and its construction should be as carefully worked out as the design of the fireplace.

Homes are generally all designed in much the same way. The design starts at the front of the house and the rooms are carefully laid out. The kitchen, however, is left to fill up any space that may be left and the result is often inconvenient and unsatisfactory. The business end of a house is one of the most important. Anyone who has worked in a kitchen that has everything arranged so that nothing is handy and that is too small to admit of any changes being made knows what a relief it is to have a well-arranged kitchen.

The house shown here is planned in effect in this type of refrigerator is in the eliminating of winter ice bills. The outside icing door is left open in cold weather and the refrigerator is cooled without the use of any ice. Of course the same result can be attained by placing a refrigerator on the back porch, but the material that is stored can easily be taken by some stray prowler.

The rest of the house has not been neglected in this design, however, and presents a mighty attractive arrangement. The porches especially present a pleasant appearance. Across the front of the house is a broad veranda that will be used a lot in the summer-time. Equipped with a porch swing and some porch furniture it would present an ideal spot. In back of the dining room is a cozy dining porch which resembles a sun parlor in many ways. Two sides of this little room are taken up almost entirely by windows.

In many modern house designs the owners insist on sleeping porches, and this design supplies them. In the back of the house on the second floor are two screened porches so that all the household can sleep outside if they wish. Fresh air is one of the greatest tonics and health protectors that can be found anywhere, and there is lots of it. All you have to do is help yourself.

The exterior of this house is very attractive. The foundation is of brick and also the chimney from the fireplace. From the foundation to the window sills on the second floor the house is finished in clapboards. From here up to the roof the finish is of paneled stucco. The windows are artistically placed and give a distinctive touch to the exterior.

The living room and the dining room on the first floor are connected by a colonnade and a cased opening so that a large unobstructed space is assured. Under the colonnade on each side of the opening is a bookcase. This presents an attractive way of using space that is often wasted. In the end of the living room is a large brick fireplace. On each side of it is a small window with a seat underneath, making a pleasant, cozy little corner.

The second-floor plan calls for three bedrooms and a bathroom in addition to the two sleeping porches mentioned. Plenty of closet space is provided and the bedrooms are all of a good size. The one in the front part of the house is especially large.

Storage space is provided in the attic for the many things that are kept around the house that are not in use.

The whole design shows a real home that is designed for comfort and practical use.

The Time to Act.

A correspondent wrote to the editor of a local paper as follows:

"I have a horse that has been afflicted for the last year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon."

In the next issue this answer appeared: "When the horse is looking all right sell him to someone."

In the Malay Archipelago.

Java is the only one of the Dutch East Indies that has been fully opened and developed. Sumatra is being gradually exploited, and the unfriendly tribes brought under control, but Borneo and New Guinea—part of each of which is owned by the Dutch—and minor islands are as yet but little developed. The total area of the Dutch possessions in the Malay Archipelago is 739,000 square miles, while the population is 37,000,000.

Weymouth Gazette

FRIDAY, OCT. 1, 1915

The Roxbury man who was robbed of $400 and then locked in an ice box by two men probably thought they treated him with cool contempt.

Remember the winter schedule of train service on the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad went into effect last Sunday. Several trains were withdrawn—was your usual train one of them?

As the fare increase question on the Bay State Street railway is the most important matter of discussion of the day in this section we would be pleased to consider for publication, any opinions of reasonable length from the people of this town.

The disastrous Hampton Beach fire is just a gentle reminder of what could have occurred in our beach section at North Weymouth, before the auto trucks were installed. Safety first is a good motto for prevention of such fires occurred last week at the famous summer resort.

Some one has figured out that the earth can sustain 1,000,000,000 people and by the same authority the sustaining capacity of the earth will be reached in about 600 years at the present rate of increase. Possibly, however, the statistician had not taken into account the war in Europe and its effect on racial increase.

Fifty years after the last shot was fired the survivors of the Union Army marched in review before the President of the United States, on Wednesday. In the court of honor where President Johnson stood Sept. 29, 1865, President Wilson greeted the remaining members of the armies of Grant and Sherman. It will probably be the last time that many of the Veterans will be on review and the occasion will always be remembered by those who participated.

Every day or two we read where another bank treasurer or cashier has become a victim of temptation and misused the funds of his bank. Does it ever occur to our citizens how fortunate the people in this town are to have their money and banking matters in the hands of such a sterling group of men as Messrs. Stetson Barnes, Raymond and Crane. It is unfortunate that all positions in our country carrying the responsibility of handling money and property are not filled by like men.

The three great questions which are involved in the present political campaign in Massachusetts, are sectarian, suffrage and prohibition. They are all questions of importance and all questions with earnest and sincere advocates and also they are measures which meet with opposition by sound conservative men who do not believe in piling up legislation which would become a dead letter because the majority of the people are not in favor of its enforcement and many of the candidates for office, if elected, will find themselves between two fires when the questions come up in the legislature and their constituents are heard from.

Special Meeting of S. of V.

General James L. Bates Camp Sons of Veterans will hold a special meeting in G. A. R. hall, East Weymouth this (Friday) evening, in charge of the Past Commanders' Association. There will be speech making by Division Commander Richardson, Past Division Commander Tucker and Past Commander-in-Chief Bolton.

The word "Radical," as applied to a British political party, originated in a speech made by Charles J. Fox in 1797, when he referred to the necessity for "radical" reform.

Not to be Fooled Twice.

"We are now," said the passenger in the dripping oilskins, "about to round Cape Horn. Don't you want to come out and see it?" "I should say not," answered the passenger with the novel. "You made me go and look at Sandy Hook, and it wasn't a hook at all. You can't fool me a second time." —New York Sun.

Strength or Weakness.

Trouble and anxiety are cruel masters, but wonderful teachers; they prepare us to understand the deepest mysteries, they make us strong for the greatest tasks, they open the way to incalculable treasures of sympathy and love. In a world which is fashioned to aid, enrich, and strengthen our spirits nothing comes to us devoid of meaning; everything that meets us challenges us and compels us to choose to become stronger or weaker.

Brr!!! Is your home chilly too?

It's easy to keep warm if you know how. A lot of people have been uncomfortable these last few days because they had no other means than their coal furnaces of getting heat into their homes. But it's too early to start a furnace fire and too extravagant, because the furnace heats the whole house and you only want heat in one room for a short time.

Then too you have the disagreeable task of starting the fire and removing ashes.

BURDENS LIFTED

From Weymouth Backs—Relief Proved by Lapse of Time.

Backache is a heavy burden;
Nervousness, dizziness, headache,
Rheumatic pain; urinary ills;
All wear one out
Often effects of kidney weakness,
No use to cure the symptoms, Relief is but temporary if the cause remains.

If it's the kidneys, cure the cause.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidney ills—Here's proof of their merit from this vicinity.

A. F. Howes, 179 Commercial St., E.
Braintree, Mass., says: "I had very severe pains in my back and kidneys. The passages of the kidney secretions were scanty and painful. A neighbor recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and after using one box, I noticed a marked difference.
The passages of the kidney secretions became regular and the pains left my back."
(Statement given May 5th, 1913)

USES DOAN'S OCCASIONALLY.

On May 21st, 1915, Mr. Howes said: "I use Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile to keep my kidneys acting right and they always bring good results. I am glad to allow you to continue using my recommendation."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Binney had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Great Essayist's Pseudonym.

Joseph Addison, the English essayist, used the pseudonym "Clio." When he wrote a manuscript in the city he annotated with a "C;" when in London, "L;" when in Islington, where he lived, "I;" and when in his office, "O," the whole spelling Clio.

GREATEST AMONG SHORTSTOPS IN BASEBALL

Fans who have picked Bush of Detroit, Weaver of Chicago, Fletcher of the Giants or Maranville of the Braves as the greatest of shortstops, will be surprised to learn that Manager Huggins of the Cardinals considers Charley Herzog the greatest shortstop in baseball today.

"His think tank and his aggressiveness, as well as the fact that he is a better balanced ball player than any of the four men mentioned, make Herzog, to me, the grandest shortstop in baseball," says Huggins.

"Herzog will block a man off the bag in a pinch, if necessary; he will bunt with an infield playing on his heels, or he'll steal a base when it may mean the ball game, and he plays against all kinds of teams and hits against all kinds of pitching the same. I think Herzog is beyond doubt entitled to all-American honors as a shortstop, though peculiarly few, if any, critics have given him this honor."

Record Entitles Eddie Plank to Title
—Long Service as Mainstay Continues With Feds.

Eddie Plank deserves the title of the "greatest left-handed pitcher" that ever lived.

For 15 years, 1901 to 1914, the wonderful southpaw was the Mack mainstay. For 15 years he pitched the kind of baseball that helped the Athletics to win a large flock of pennants and a number of world-champion titles.

And now, in his forty-first year, and his sixteenth in baseball, he is the pitching sensation of the Federal league. Cast adrift by his old boss, he connected with a job in the new league and is back at his old trick of rolling up a huge winning percentage.

The most amazing part of Plank's work this year is the fact that he is pitching to batters who are new to him. He hasn't the benefit of the experience gained in other years to aid him. He doesn't know the strength and the weakness of the batters who face him, as he did in the American league. He must learn as he goes. He must pit the old southpaw whip, absolutely unaided, against the Federal league clouters. And he has done so successfully.

Plank is one of the very few left-handers who has no eccentricities. He has been normal in his conduct, a gentleman on the ball field and off, and all through the 16 years of his major league career he has graced the game by his presence.

Tigers Sign Two Southerners.
Pitchers Rube Marshall and George Cunningham of the Chattanooga team in the Southern league have been purchased by the Detroit Tigers.

New Shortstop for Pirates.
Harry Daubert, shortstop for the Charleston baseball team of the Ohio state league, has been purchased by the Pittsburgh Nationals.

Indians Sign Big Youngster.
Manager Lee Fohl of the Indians has signed a 6-foot-4 youngster named Garrett from Mason City, Ia., who pitches with his right arm.

DIAMOND NOTES

Perhaps these umpires need fewer critics and more good models.

Many major league scouts are searching for spectators, not players.

Pirates of Barney Dreyfuss appear to be almost as good as the Pirates of Penzance.

George Stallings insists that the Braves are a better ball team than they were last year.

One of the Pittsburgh critics says Evers is playing for public sympathy by threatening to quit.

"I care not for the stars that shine," sang Connie Mack, whereupon he sold another to Comiskey.

Ban Johnson, American league boss, says ten cents is all the Federal league should ever have charged.

Pete Compton, the terrible slugger from Kansas City, is expected to help the Braves out of their batting slump.

There are many fans in Boston that are complaining about the generosity of Connie Mack toward the White Sox.

Ty Cobb has stolen more bases this year than the entire Philadelphia Nationals, who are leading the old league race.

George Whitted is making Miracle Man Stallings frown every time he looks at the hit column of the Phillies' box score.

Federal league batters were completely fooled by the "mud ball," but President Gilmore knocked it clear out of the league.

If Lee Fohl were in Germany he would be given an iron cross. He has managed the Cleveland team more than two months.

"What's the matter with the Cubs?" asks Roger Bresnahan. And Charley Herzog answers: "What ain't the matter with the Reds?"

Connie Mack promised to put some pepper into his team—and he did, although his pepper seems more like paprika than cayenne.

Most of the stars of the American league are golf players, but refrain from indulging in the game in the baseball playing season.

Grover Alexander does not worry over his defeats. Pat Moran says he never knew a pitcher to be so unconcerned about his defeats.

Hughie Jennings is hustling to keep his Tigers in front of the procession, but he will not be able to do it unless he gets some pitching help.

Hans Wagner and Heinie Zimmerman should worry about small baseball receipts. There has been a big drop in the price of sauerkraut.

MAKING A MATCH

For a Time It Was Considered a Thankless Job

By F. A. MITCHEL

"Martha," said Farmer Holt one evening to his wife when she was washing the dishes, "John Corey was talkin' to me this afternoon. He says he wants to get married."

"Well, why don't he?"

"He says there ain't no one to marry."

"There's lots o' wimmin would like to get John. He's passed out o' onsertin' youth into shore middle age. He's got a good farm, and it's well stocked, and he ain't got no bad habits fixed on to him. I could name half a dozen gals about yere that would be glad to get him."

"He says he couldn't make up his mind to do the courtin'."

"What's he want to do any courtin' for? Courtin' for youngers. John's too old for that, and if he marries a woman of suitable age—some's about thirty—I reckon she won't set store by the courtin' part of it neither."

"How can a man get married without doin' any courtin'?"

"He kin jist ask the woman he wants to marry, and if she says yes they kin be married."

"But John says he don't know any particular woman he wants to marry." Mrs. Holt finished doing her dishes, put them away and, taking up a basket of stockings, began to darn them. Her husband turned to the Farmer's Helper and began to read.

"I'm thinkin'," said the wife, whose mind had got set on the matrimonial question, "that Mandy Sellers would be about what John wants. She's a first rate cook and keeps the house lookin' neat and clean all the time. She's always workin' at somethin'."

"Reckon her father and mother need her."

"There's the younger sister, Susan. She could take Mandy's place. Besides, a gal has got to look out for a home of her own."

"How d'y'e know Mandy would have John?"

"Humph! She'd jump at the chance." The farmer turned to his paper. He was more interested in an article on the feeding of hogs than in providing John Corey with a wife. But the idea of making the poor man comfortable and obtaining at the same time a home for Mandy Sellers had got into Mrs. Holt's head, and she couldn't get it out.

Miss Sellers occupied the adjoining farm to the Holts, and presently leaving her husband immersed in the hog feeding problem the good woman slipped out and interviewed Mandy, telling her that John Corey wanted a wife. She did not ask Mandy if she would like the position; she simply stated the fact. But a few days later when Mandy asked if John had got a wife yet Mrs. Holt suggested that Mandy would be about the kind of wife he should have. Mandy smiled and said he "wouldn't look at her."

One day John was at work at the cider press when he heard Mrs. Holt call him from the road. He went to her, and she spent half an hour questioning him about the treatment of cows and chickens and other matters pertaining to the farm. Just as she was about to depart she said:

"By the bye, Mr. Corey, have you seen Mandy Sellers lately?"

"No, Mrs. Holt. I ain't seen none o' the Sellers family in some time."

"Fine gal, Mandy."

"Think so?"

"Good cook, knows all about a farm and specially good at dairy work."

"I want to know."

"I wonder why some of the unmarried men about yere hasn't picked Mandy up. She's gettin' on past the age for the young fellers, and there's not many middle aged men in these parts that haven't wives."

"Reckon I'm about the only one o' that kind."

"If you're wantin' a wife you couldn't do better than marry Mandy."

"La! sakes, Mrs. Holt! Mandy Sellers wouldn't marry me. Besides, she's wanted at the Sellers farm. She's most runs it."

"Don't you believe that. Mandy would like a home as well as any gal I know."

Mrs. Holt, being a diplomat, went no further at the time. She had sowed the seed both in the breast of Miss Sellers and Mr. Corey and was disposed to give it time to germinate. By a skillful manipulation of the parties she finally got them together. John proposed, was accepted, and in due time the pair were married.

Now, John Corey was not a pliable man even in youth, and, having come to middle age, his will was hardening like his bones and cartilage. As for Mandy, she was a methodical person who preferred to do such work as a woman is expected to do in her own way. Thus when he saw her doing things in a different way from what he had been used to doing them he murmured. Mandy had kept the parental abode spick and span. Her father had been accustomed on coming into the house after his day's work was finished to put on a pair of slippers; John tramped in his muddy boots all over the house. Her father did not smoke; John did and knocked the ashes out of his pipe on anything that came handy, usually the floor.

One day Farmer Holt and John Corey met at the crossroads.

"Howdy, John?" said Holt. "How do you like matrimony so far as ye got?"

"Waal, I ain't as independent as I was. My wife seems inclined to run things."

Farmer Holt changed the subject. Later Mrs. Holt dropped in on Mrs. Corey and asked her a similar question.

"Waal, Mrs. Holt, it would be well enough if John had any respect for the looks o' the house. He's lived alone so long that his home isn't any more to him than his barn."

When Mr. and Mrs. Holt compared notes it became apparent to them that if the Corey family continued as they had begun they would not hang together long. Mr. Holt accused his wife of having been too active in making the match, and Mrs. Holt retorted by asking him who started the matter. Since he had done so in reporting to her that John Corey wanted a wife he pursued the argument no further.

Matters in the Corey family went from bad to worse. Whenever John met Farmer Holt he abused him for making a match for him with the "con-sarnedest woman in the world." When Mrs. Corey met Mrs. Holt she raved the day when she had left a good home to keep house for a man who was so set in his ways that an ox team couldn't move him. The recitals of family difficulties were from time to time poured into Farmer Holt's ears by John Corey and into Mrs. Holt's ears by Mrs. Corey. Now and again the Holts were reminded that they had made the match. John said he didn't blame Holt for his share in tying him up with a virago, but this did not cause the latter to feel especially well satisfied with himself for having done so. Mrs. Corey did not hesitate to throw all the blame for her "mistake" on Mrs. Holt.

In time these vituperations became so marked that the Holts concluded that they must do something to stop them. The only thing they could think of was to apologize for having interfered to bring the couple together. One evening after Mrs. Holt had cleared the supper table and done the dishes they walked over to the Corey farm to carry out their intention. They found Mr. and Mrs. Corey at home, and the couple, not having had any reason to quarrel with each other, received their guests, if not with cordiality, at least with common civility.

The visitors talked for a time about the crops, what they were going to put into the ground for the next year and other ordinary matters. Presently Mrs. Holt looked knowingly at her husband, who, nervously himself for an effort, after clearing his throat, said:

"I want to say to you people that the blame for the mistake that has been made is all on me. I mentioned to my wife that John wanted to get married, and she reckoned that you two might be a help to each other. I didn't know that John wasn't used to havin' a clean house and—"

"I didn't know," interrupted Mrs. Holt, "that Mandy would make a fuss every time there was a bit o' dirt left on a rag carpet."

"Air you statin' this case or I?" asked Farmer Holt severely.

"Look a-here," said Mr. Corey, bristling. "What do you people mean by comin' yere to interfere between man and wife?"

"Ain't you got nothin' better to do than that?" asked Mrs. Corey tempestuously.

"We jist wanted to apologize for what we done in bringin' you two together, seein' that you both made a mistake in puttin' on double harness."

"Who's made a mistake?" growled Corey.

"There hasn't been any mistake," cried his wife.

Mrs. Holt was so indignant at this denial of what had been poured into her ears and her husband's ears for so long a time that she opened up the debate on a high key. Mr. Corey endeavoring to drown her words with a higher one. For a time the man threw in an occasional remark, but, finding themselves no match for the women, dropped out, their utterances sounding like distant thunder muttering in a violent storm.

Finally Farmer Corey deserted, leaving his wife to carry on the fight alone. She then began a retreat, turning here and there to fire a parting shot. Mrs. Corey followed her on to the porch, while John went out the back door to seek quiet in the barn.

The tempest was stilled when Mrs. Holt reached the gate and was not resumed. No more reproaches were visited on Holt by Corey or on Mrs. Holt by Mrs. Corey. There was no intercourse between the families for six months. Then one day Mrs. Holt sent a mysterious looking box to Mrs. Corey. It was not returned, but a note of thanks came to the donor, with an expressed desire that the past might be forgotten. Within a few weeks from that time the stork visited the Coreys. Mr. and Mrs. Holt sent the baby a silver cup and were invited to stand as godfather and godmother at the child's christening. After the ceremony they returned with the happy parents to the latter's home.

"It beats all," said Corey to Holt.

"How a little chunk of flesh like that will make a lot o' other things seem so little you can't see 'em."

"Reckon you'll find the chunk o' flesh got so little as you think," replied Farmer Holt.

"I want to thank you, Mr. Holt, for givin' me the best wife in the hull county and the baby as well."

"Don't mention it."

Meanwhile Mrs. Holt was being thanked by the mother for saving her from being an old maid and giving her the best man that ever lived, besides the baby.

FROCKS OF ONE PIECE

MOST FASHIONABLE OUTFIT FOR THE COMING SEASON.

Separate Blouse Will by No Means Be Discarded, but Is Not Likely to Enjoy Its Former Degree of Popularity.

Each year we hear the cry that the separate blouse is doomed to extinction, yet the decades pass without this ill prophecy proving true. While summer lasts it is possible that women will wear thin waists with skirts that carry coats, and it is earnestly hoped that the separate white wash blouse will never be banished from the wardrobe, for no garment can really take its place. But, accepting all these facts, still it must be faced as a condition, not a theory, that the one-piece frock will be by far the more fashionable outfit than the three-piece suit.

This autumn will see it at high tide. That is the news from across the water and there is no reason to doubt that all of the great designers are bending their efforts to secure originality in one-piece frocks that are frankly princess, or have the appearance of a skirt with a short jacket. The latter idea has been worked out rather successfully during the early summer, but the majority of women passed it by, choosing the regulation coat suit in preference, their reason being the traditional one that one can lift a coat and be cool in a transparent blouse, but the attached waist must remain. This is true when cloth is used for a coat and skirt, but the fashionable materials of this summer are not cloth, barring the thinnest kind of serge. And blue serge, they tell us, will retain its high position again during the autumn, which is good news for the most of us.

There does not pass a season that there is not some sort of a struggle when the frock comes to the part of the body which is supposed to mark a dividing line. Cheruit does not want a dividing line marked out definitely on the frock or coat, and Pre-met and Jenny seem to delight in placing the belt where it was in other days when women boasted of the smallness of their waist far more than they did the largeness of their virtues.

In this struggle Mme. Cheruit is far more kindly to the woman of average figure. We have not allowed ourselves undue laxity in the development of that almost straight line that runs from the bust to the hips, to be happy if we are called up short and told to wear garments that are graceful only when the waistline is slender and in direct contrast to all that we have thought admirably fashionable for a decade.

One serious-minded designer will attempt the empire waist line with a tiny bodice above it and a wide skirt that is molded to the hips, reaching its flare after it passes them. Another will continue and emphasize the so-called normal waist, and yet others will follow Cheruit in sloping the waist, indefinitely, toward the upper curve of the hips.

If these various methods prevail and are not merged into each other, then each woman will be happy, for she can suit her own figure. She has enjoyed such an unwanted degree of license in the matter of choosing fashions for her especial type that she may not be persuaded, easily, to walk again in a straight and narrow path laid down for her by the sartorial Council of Ten.

It all looks, however, as if the dividing line, wherever it may be placed, will not really divide anything. The separate bodice will have so many enemies allied against it that it may surrender its first place and be considered only as a substitute in time of need.

The first question an American woman asks is how she can be comfortable in our super-heated houses when she wears a waist of cloth, but the answer to this is that the designers will obviate that discomfort by putting in thin sleeves and yoke.

New Foundry at Taunton for Magee Furnace Company.THE NEW MAGEE FOUNDRY AT TAUNTON

The city of Taunton, the Chamber of Commerce and the Taunton Planning Board, headed by Alfred B. Williams, are jubilant over the coming to this city of one of the biggest industries of its kind in the country, as evidenced by the big force of construction men now at work building a big new foundry and manufacturing plant for the Magee Furnace Company, Inc., on the old Taunton agricultural fair grounds.

The Magee company, whose name has been a household word ever since 1856, and whose products are found all over the United States and in many foreign countries, recently purchased the big fair grounds which cover more than seven acres of ground. There they are building a foundry 500 feet long and all the necessary accompanying buildings.

Ready First of Year.

The Magee company has for many years been established in Chelsea and claims to have built up the most complete line of heating and cooking apparatus made by any firm in the country. They have arranged their affairs so that the new factory will be completed about the first of the year and after the annual fall rush is over, thereby assuring themselves that there will be no delays in their shipments for the fall and early winter trade.

The new foundry in this city will have a melting capacity of 70,000 pounds of iron daily. This tremendous weight of metal will go into the manufacture of Magee ranges, furnaces, heaters, etc.

Greeted His Old Friends.

A young actor obtained permission from the celebrated satirist Piron to read to him a tragedy which was on the eve of being brought out. At every verse that was pillaged Piron took off his hat and bowed, and so frequently had he occasion to do this that the author, surprised, asked what he meant. "Oh," replied Piron, "it is only a habit I have got of saluting my old acquaintances."

Mexico's Capital.

Standing toward the southern extremity of the great plateau of Anahuac, reposing in a beautiful valley full of natural resources and rich with historic lore, is the City of Mexico. Of singular and varied interest is this capital of the republic whose name it bears, for its geographical situation and historical associations are such as assign it a leading place among the great centers of Spanish American civilization.

over 500 people, will be arranged for in the vicinity of the fair grounds, where many fine building sites are to be found close to the electric car line and about six minutes' ride from the main square of Taunton. The planning board, under Mr. Williams' direction, has undertaken a sort of municipal development competition in which the various wards of the city are pitted against one another for the ranking place in the cost of building and development operations. The building of the Magee plant easily handed the victory to the ward which includes the fair grounds for the grand total for the first six months.

The new Magee plant has direct electric freight connections with Boston and surrounding towns, with the railroad via the Taunton central freight depot, and also has water transportation connections via the Taunton river. A bill is now before Congress to dredge a 24-foot channel from Fall River to Taunton. This will be a great addition to the manufacturing facilities of Taunton.

A Model Plant.

The new plant will be the last word in range and heater manufacturing science. All the latest devices and labor saving machinery will be installed, thereby enabling the manufacturers to keep up their reputation for progress and increasing efficiency, while at the same time allowing them to market their usual prices.

One of the officers of the company stated that the change from the Chelsea plant to the new one in this city will not be made until late this year. Their Boston headquarters in Union street will be maintained as usual.

Mrs. J. Amanda Spear.

Last Friday, September 24th, Mrs. J. Amanda Spear passed away at the home of her son Harry P. Spear at the age of 78 years, 5 months, 23 days. Mrs. Spear had been ill for some time and the end was not a surprise to those who knew her.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her sons home at 29 Charles street, East Weymouth. The service was conducted by Rev. Charles Clark of the Pilgrim Congregational church, North Weymouth and a quartette composed of Mrs. Franklin P. Whitten, Miss Ethel F. Raymond, Mrs. Harry L. Bates and Miss Susie E. Raymond sang, "Abide With Me," "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Rock of Ages". Burial was in the Old North Cemetery.

Know Paint.

There's a paint-education in this advertisement.

Buy by the job, not gallon. Buy by the paint put-on; that's the job.

The price of paint is so much a gallon; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

The price of painting is so much a day; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

Put them together. How can you do it? You've got to or lose perhaps half of your money.

Devoe, 10 gallons enough for the average job; an average paint, 15. Now reckon your costs. Count labor a day for a gallon. Devoe 10 days; the other 15.

Devoe about $50; the average paint about $70 or $80; the dearer the labor the bigger the difference, always that way.

But that's for the job. How long is it going to last? One twice as long as the other.

National Prohibition.

The Firing Squadron of New England working for National Prohibition will occupy the Congregational church, East Weymouth, next Wednesday with a grand rally at 2:30 P. M. and another at 7:45. Brilliant speakers and fine music.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY-EIGHT YEARS AGO.

The annual reunion of the Weymouth High School association will take place next Wednesday evening, October 10th. The oration will be delivered by E. C. Bumpus Esq. of Weymouth. A poem written for the occasion by Miss Mary A. Webster a graduate of the North High school will be read. There will also be singing by Miss Ruth Holbrook. Exercises will commence at 8 o'clock.

The Active Engine Company held a meeting Monday night when they voted that the engine should be tried twice a week. A few more members were added to the list and it is hoped that many more will sign.

The Rocket Fire Engine Co. having voted to attend the Firemen's Muster at Danvers are practicing for that occasion. Tuesday the tub threw a stream the distance of one hundred and eighty four feet.

The Eureka Hook & Ladder Co., held a meeting Monday evening at the shop of Capt. Oliver Burrell. Several new members were added making the company full. Officers of the company were elected as follows: Oliver Burrell, captain; W. B. Raymond, 1st assistant; C. W. Haywood, 2nd assistant; clerk and treasurer, L. W. Cain; steward, Henry Vogel.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

The members of the Hose Co. at Weymouth Heights are very much pleased with their new carriage which has been received this week. It may be called a "Jim dandy".

Arrivals this week. Schooner Willard and Wilson from Dover, N. H. with 45,000 bricks. At Augustus J. Richards & Sons, schooner Alfred W. Fisk from Philadelphia with 600 tons of coal and schooner Frank Seavey from the same port with 612 tons.

G. M. Pratt has had the foundation laid and begun the construction of the smokestack to the new power-house of M. C. Dizer & Co. This smokestack will be cylindrical in form, forty-two feet in circumference at the base and one hundred and twenty-five feet high.

The second annual reception of the Old Folks' Association, South Weymouth, was held in the vestry of the Union Congregational church yesterday afternoon. 110 old people whose average age was over 72 and whose aggregate age was 782 years, were assembled together for a grand good time and they had it.

When it finds a resting place, the engine house, which for several days has been on the road, will have passed from Predict 2 into Predict 6 and as it has been the voting place for those residing in the former ward, many voters are becoming anxious as to where they will go to exercise their right of suffrage at the coming election.

Kelley—Welch.

Miss Mary Gertrude Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Welch of 15 Reed avenue, South Weymouth, was married last Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock to John Patrick Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Kelley of 40 North avenue, Rockland at the parochial residence of Rev. D. P. Crimmins, pastor of the St. Francis Xavier church of this town. The best man was William H. Ryan of Rockland and the bridesmaid was Miss Annie Welch, sister of the bride.

The bride's dress was white crepe meteor with chintilly lace and pearl trimmings. Her veil was of tulle and was caught with lilies of the valley. She carried a shower bouquet of brides' roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was gowned in white net over blue chiffon with a black picture hat to match and her bouquet was of pink roses.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride where the happy couple were assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and the best man and bridesmaid. At a late hour the couple left on a wedding trip to New York and Washington.

There were guests present from Rockland, Weymouth, Somerville, Cambridge, Hull and Dorchester. The couple received many beautiful gifts of cut glass and silver. The groom is employed as an electrician at the sub-station of the Bay State Street Railway in Rockland and the bride is well known in this town. The couple will reside at 307 North avenue, Rockland.

RAYMOND—CUNNINGHAM.

Quincy Man Takes East Weymouth Lady as His Bride.

A wedding ceremony, which ushered in the month of October, was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coughlin of 70 Middle street, last Friday evening, when their daughter Bertha Foster Cunningham became the bride of Harold Whitcomb Raymond of 45 Upland road, Quincy.

At 7:45, with music furnished by the Durell String Quartette of Boston, the bridal party entered the main parlor through an aisle formed by the following eight young lady friends of the bride: Miss Edith Newcomb of Dorchester, Miss Audrey L. Duffey of Medford, Miss Edna M. Sturtevant of Somerville, Miss Ruth Furber of Milton, Miss Mariel Butler of Lynn and the Misses Irene A. Fraser, Marguerite A. Connor and Katherine E. Fraser of East Weymouth.

The double ring service was used. Rev. William M. Newton of the Methodist Episcopal church performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Chester Chamberlain Butts of Newton Center was best man and Miss Ethel Freeman Raymond of Quincy, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Miss Pearl M. Hayward of North Reading was flower girl and carried a large basket of yellow narguerites. The bride carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and the bridesmaid a bouquet of yellow roses.

The ushers were Stuart C. Vinal of Amherst, a cousin of the bride, Arthur B. Stanley of Hyde Park, Earle W. Bates of South Weymouth and J. Wendell Vogell of West Quincy. Harry L. Bates of Quincy was master of ceremonies.

At the reception, following the ceremony, the couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cunningham, Mrs. Arthur M. Raymond and Miss Ethel F. Raymond. A lunch was served by Westover & Foss, caterers, and they were assisted by five young ladies, high school pupils of the bride.

The Durell String Quartette of Boston: Miss Hazel F. Clark, violin; Miss Josephine T. Durell, violin; Miss Anna R. Golden, viola, and Miss Mildred A. Ridley, cello, furnished incidental music throughout the evening.

Miss Cunningham was a graduate in the 1906 class at the Weymouth High school and in the 1910 class at Mt. Holyoke college. For the past three years she has been one of the corps of teachers in the High school, from which she was graduated, and was well liked by all of the pupils and teachers.

Mr. Raymond was a graduate in the 1907 class at Weymouth High and spent two years at Dartmouth college. He is employed by Adams & Co., bond brokers of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond left for a trip to Old Point Comfort, Va., and on their return will make stops at Washington, D. C., New York city and New Haven, Conn. They will be at home to their friends at 92 Chard street, East Weymouth, after December 1st.

South Shore Co-operative Bank Holds Regular Monthly Meeting.

At the regular monthly meeting of the South Shore Co-operative bank held on Monday evening Oct. 4, a dividend of 5 1/2 percent was declared on regular shares and 5 percent on matured shares. Resolutions were passed on the death of two of the former directors, David J. Pierce and Patrick Butler.

TOWN BUSINESS.

The following are recommended to the Mass. Board of Education for admission to the Quincy Industrial school: Angus McCaskill, Edgar F. Alden Jr., Edgar Bain and Cluca Choppell.

The Pond Plain Improvement association ask the selectmen to take action against the increase of fare as per the new rates of the Bay State St. Ry. The selectmen have already taken action and will, with the Town Council, appear before the commissioners at a hearing to be held early in November.

Mr. Worthen reported to the selectmen, progress being made as to the apportionment of the Metropolitan tax rate. Investigation is being made as to who is using the parks, bathing places, bridges etc. of the system. Tabs were kept on the Wellington bridge travel from Sept. 11th to 15th inclusive and 807 auto trucks and express wagons passed over and not a single one was from Weymouth.

On Wednesday, the 20th, the selectmen will perambulate lines which separate Weymouth from Hingham, Rockland and Abington and on Thursday, the 21st, the lines between Holbrook, Randolph and Braintree and in each instance will be accompanied by the selectmen of these respective towns. This is a duty which devolves on them every fifth year and Weymouth is probably the only town in the state which can show boundary lines which have stood the test of nearly three hundred years without a change.

Police Notes.

The two young men arrested last week and sentenced to 30 days in the House of Correction for stealing garden truck proved to be old offenders, and were wanted by the police of Boston for breaking and entering. The names they gave to the Weymouth police proved to be fictitious.

Sunday afternoon, the Police Department was notified that some persons were disturbing the religious exercises being held in the tent on the vacant lot next to the police station. The police arrested the person creating the disturbance and in the Quincy court Monday he was fined $25.00.

Mildred Perry, who is under the charge of the State Board of Charity, is wanted by that society for setting fires in Roxbury. She disappeared from that place where she was held, and the police are asked to locate her if possible. The young lady formerly lived in Weymouth.

Headquarters were notified Tuesday morning that some time between 1 and 2 o'clock of that morning burglars entered the house of John H. Tower, 458 Bridge street, North Weymouth and carried away a coffee set consisting of sugar bowl, coffee pot and cream pitcher. The police are investigating the case.

Paul Reed Nichols is wanted by the police of Worcester for larceny. The Weymouth police were notified to locate him if possible as he formally lived here.

Walter Sillway reported to headquarters that Sunday some one stole his watch, dress suit case and some clothing. The police are looking for a person they have under suspicion who disappeared at that time.

Headquarters received three circulars this week from the police department of New York describing three men wanted for murder in that city. Photographs of the men are on the circulars.

Cassese—Russoneillo.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated on Wednesday when Miss Mary Louise Cassese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cassese of 215 Lake street, East Weymouth, became the bride of Vincent Russoneillo, an architect, and son of Louis Russoneillo of Scranton, Pennsylvania. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception church by Rev. Cornelius Riordan. John Howley of Scranton, Pa. was best man and his wife was matron of honor. The bride was dressed in a beautiful gown of white silk with white bead ornaments and a white bridal veil.

A reception was held at the bride's home from 7 to 11 o'clock and the couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Cassese and Mr. and Mrs. Howley. A lunch was served and dancing enjoyed with music furnished by an orchestra composed of Frank L. Vander, cornet; Lyman F. Pratt, traps; Joseph Deldono, violin and Antonio Zeolle, piano. The interior of the house was decorated with ferns and cut flowers.

Mrs. Russoneillo went two years at Weymouth High school and will be remembered as one of the soloists in the operetta "The Egyptian Princess" given by the girls of the High school last winter, she taking the part of the princess.

They left for a wedding trip to New York and Philadelphia and will reside in Scranton, Pa., where Mr. Russoneillo does a business as an architect.

STRUCK BY BICYCLE.

East Weymouth Man Sustains Severe Shock and Several Bruises Last Friday Night.

As Samuel Denton of Linden place, East Weymouth, was crossing the street at the junction of Madison and Broad streets, at 7:20 o'clock last Friday night, he was struck by a bicycle and knocked down. The bicyclist was approaching from one direction and an auto from the opposite way, and it is thought the driver of the bicycle became confused or failed to see Mr. Denton, in watching the approaching automobile.

Mr. Denton was helped to his feet by people who were in the vicinity at the time, and did not appear to be seriously hurt. Later in the evening he complained of severe pains in his chest and back and was obliged to seek the service of a doctor. After an examination by Dr. Doucette at his office, it was found that Mr. Denton was suffering from severe bruises on various parts of his body. He was taken home and at the last report was recovering from the effects of the accident.

High School Notes.

High School Notes.

The Weymouth High football team plays Braintree High at Braintree this (Friday) afternoon.

With Palmer and Abel showing their strength at tackle and a wholly new system of signals and plays Weymouth High should be able to give an exhibition of scientific football in the game with Braintree.

Parker Whittle the crack Weymouth High quarterback for three years, has made the position of quarterback on the Massachusetts Agricultural College freshman team.

In the first Junior Class meeting a nominating committee was elected as follows: Priscilla Alden ch., Mary MacIsaac, Velma Abbott, Wallace Whittle, Charles Palmer, Charles McCray and George Curtin.

Because of the increased number of students it was found necessary to obtain an additional teacher. Miss Ingraham a graduate of Wellesly College has accepted the position.

The Girls' Literary Union will have a musical program for their first formal meeting Monday afternoon.

The Senior Girls held a successful candy sale during the noon hour Wednesday and Thursday.

The gymnasium has been repaired and is now used as a class room for drawing and typewriting.

Next Friday afternoon the Senior Class will tender the Freshmen a reception in the High School hall.

On account of their high standing in their studies Ruth Ford and Dorothy Hallman received season tickets from the Old Colony club, while Agnes Lyons and Isabelle Jones were paid the same honor by the Monday Club.

Lawrence Caudfield who returned as a post-graduate has accepted a position in the office of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation.

The orchestra has been reorganized under Mr. Calderwood's supervision with the following members: Dorothy Marden, pianist; Percy Ames, Jeanette Shaw, Norman Dizer, Roger Burgoyne, Pauline Dowd, William Hill, violinists; Charles Gibson, traps; Theodora Keith, Marion Howe, cornet; Frank Rand, clarinet.

TO INSTALL FINGER PRINT SYSTEM.

Weymouth Police Get In Line With Up-to-date Identification Method.

The finger print system, one of the surest ways of identifying criminals known, is to be installed at Police headquarters.

The greatest advantage of the finger print system is its simplicity. The only materials required are the plate glass upon which to spread the ink, a tube of finger-print ink, a rubber roller, the metal pointer and magnifying glass, the form holder and record card. The finger print system is taking an important place in the detection of all crime. From all sections of the country cases are being reported of criminals detected and brought to justice by the finger print system.

These finger marks have been discovered, photographed, enlarged, and in thousands of cases the guilty person has been convicted. It is said on reliable authority that there are 700 points of comparison in the average finger print, and the variety of finger prints is so great that there is one chance in 64,000,000 of there being two individuals with finger prints alike.

They cannot be altered or obliterated. A man's finger patterns do not change at all through life, they are the same in old age as in youth. When a person is taken for any crime his finger prints are taken, and a record made on a chart. Finger prints have been left on window panes, door knobs, revolvers, letters, walls, safe doors, and in fact on any object that the person touches.

No police department can tell just when they will be called upon to solve a criminal mystery. A police department that has a finger print of a criminal has a sure way of identifying him. The system is being used all over the world, and the Weymouth Police Department is keeping up-to-date.

MONDAY CLUB OPENS SEASON.

Sixteen New Members Added To Club Roll This Year. Domestic Science Classes Formed.

The first meeting of the Monday Club for the season 1915-16 was held at the Odd Fellows Opera House, on Monday, October 4th. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. E. R. Sampson, who suggested for this, the twentieth year of the club, the slogan, "Together, all together, always together."

There are sixteen new members of the club this year. After the reading of the reports of the secretary and treasurer, a most interesting talk was given by Mrs. Arthur D. Ropes, ex-president of the Wollaston Women's Club, on her trip through the Yosemite and Yellowstone national parks. The lecture was illustrated by many beautiful colored slides and photographs taken by Mrs. Ropes. The interest of the lecture was enhanced by the many personal and intimate anecdotes, and the glowing descriptions could not fail to arouse in every member a desire to visit this wonderful country.

The announcement was made of the fall meeting of the State Federation of women's clubs to be held in Fall River on November 5, at which Mr. Thomas Mott Osborn will be one of the speakers.

On Tuesday, the Domestic Science class held its first meeting in the High School building, with Mrs. Frederick L. Alden in charge and Miss Mildred Cowan as instructor. Sufficient members have joined to form two classes and eight meetings will be held during the season, on Monday and Tuesday afternoons.

MEN'S CLUB OPENS SEASON.

C. M. A. Scene of First Social Gathering of the 1915-1916 Term of Monthly Meetings.

The first meeting of the season of 1915-16 of the Men's Club connected with the Clapp Memorial Association of East Weymouth was held on Wednesday evening of this week. From 6 o'clock to 6:30 an informal social gathering was held by members and their friends.

At 6:30 the order was given to repair to the Banquet hall above where a choice assortment of good things to eat had been provided by Caterer Farrar.

After the inner man had been satisfied Mr. Drinkwater, in the absence of the president called the gathering to order and after extending a welcome to the members and their friends, introduced Frank C. Allen of Cohasset, who spoke on "The European Situation".

Union Literary Circle.

The Union Literary Circle will resume its meetings Tuesday, Oct. 12, at the home of Mrs. Romans on Summer street. A large attendance is hoped for.

Keep only the best and you will make a better profit this winter, when prices are high.

While the farm is much less dependent today on the wood lot for the supply of material consumed on the farm than it was in earlier days, the wood lot still remains an important matter. Merely from the standpoint of diversified crop production, the possible field for timber growing calls for careful study. The forest crop is pre-eminently adapted to utilize land of low value for other purposes and land too steep or broken for plowing.

As the price paid for squabs is largely affected by their size and color of their flesh, the squab raiser should be very careful about selecting breeds. The homer seems to be the most popular breed for squab raising, but the Carneau pigeon a larger bird, has recently become popular. Several other varieties of larger pigeons are used, especially in crossing with the homer and Carneau. The Runt is one of the largest, but is not as prolific or as good a breeder or feeder as the homer.

Heavy importations of crimson clover seed of low germination have caused the United States Department of Agriculture to warn farmers to ascertain the germination of the crimson clover seed they are using. Otherwise many crop failures are sure to result from using dead seed. Since July 15, twenty-six lots of crimson clover seed have been imported. In three of these lots, containing enough seed to sow over 2850 acres, there was no seed that could be expected to grow under field conditions.

An existing or already infested orchard should be carefully examined at least twice in each year;—at late as convenient in fall, and again in the following end of May or early June. In the fall examination the earth should be removed from around the base of the trees to a depth of at least 6 and preferably 8 inches, and every sign of a wound or place from which gum exudes should be investigated. There is needed a small, stiff, coarse brush to remove the gum and crush all surface feeding larvae; a stout sharp knife to cut through the bark into cavities, and a more slender, longer blade to probe channels and burrows. Never cut more than necessary and never cut across the grain if it can be avoided. If a larva can be located, a straight slit through the bark into the cavity so as to hit the borer is all that is needed.

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

It is absurd to expect pullets to lay during the early winter when they were not hatched until June or July.

Horses with tender feet need lots of attention. It should be remembered that a horse can do more than his feet will stand.

The cow and hen will bring in more cash for fifty-two weeks of the year than the small farmer can get in any other way. But they must have care during the winter if the best results are to be had.

Now is the time to make observations for next year, to note the result of any new experiment and to be able to overcome difficulties of like nature next season.

The cultivating season is over and all tools should be cleaned up and housed. One winter's exposure to the weather will do more harm than several years' use.

Clover hays are the most nutritious on the market. When a man grows hay to prevent buying, why not grow the most nutritious wherever practicable. Seed one or two acres of the best well-drained land on the place in red clover.

The great advantage the dairy cow gives the average farmer is the opportunity to market through her at a high price large quantities of bulky farm products that have a slow sale or are not salable.

Some growers burn the strawberry beds over in winter or as soon as the ground is frozen, and then mulch the rows with clean straw or salt hay. By so doing weeds that have died down are cleared away and many seeds on the surface of the ground are destroyed.

The breed is a matter of taste. There are money-making producers among the cows in every dairy breed and many, many pedigreed scrubs. If you buy a pure-bred cow, purchase her for her ability to convert large quantities of feed into milk and butterfat at a profit and not because her pedigree is long.

Now is a good time to set out trees, and the man who takes the best care is sure to have the best luck. It doesn't do to let the roots lie in the sun and air. It pays to get the best, even if they cost a little more, and then it pays to give the best of care.

Animals with young should be kept in good but not high condition. To keep them in very high flesh is as dangerous as the opposite extreme poverty. If they are fed on dry food, and become bound or costive, a few roots, or bran mash, will correct the evil.

One of the most important duties at this season is to cull out the youngsters and discard all the runty, puny specimens.

The New Minister.
"How do you like your new minister?"

"Very much, indeed. He's the right sort, one of those 'man among men' ministers, you know. Comes over to the house occasionally and smokes a pipe, plays on our baseball team, good at tennis and golf and seems to believe in getting pleasure out of this life."

"I see."
"Yes, and he's interested in the things we laymen are interested in. He discusses the problems of the day. I tell you he's a fine fellow."
"I know, but what sort of sermons does he preach?"
"Well, that I can't tell you. I haven't been over to hear him preach yet."—Detroit Free Press.

Swift and Stubborn.
Absalom rode a "mule." Some of the easiest, strongest, swiftest riding animals in the country still are mules, and a fine white mule brings a price equal to the finest horse. When the Egyptian army invaded Syria in 1839 its leader, Ibrahim Pasha, rode a remarkable mule, which covered almost unbelievable distances in a single day. Mules are phenomenal in their toughness and were no doubt as stubborn and unmanageable in Absalom's day as in ours, so that there was no holding the animal back after Absalom became entangled in the oak undergrowth.—Christian Herald.

Obliging.
Mr. Bowen was having dinner with the Reillys, and the seven-year-old son of the family was present.

"And what are you going to be when you grow up, young man?" asked Mr. Bowen of the little boy.

"Well," replied the boy thoughtfully, "after I've been a minister to please mother and a judge to please father I'm going to be a policeman."—New York Times.

Burdens of Fashion.
"I guess," said she, "I'll put on my thinking cap and consider the matter."
"Well, well!" said an old codger who overheard the remark. "Has it gotten so a woman has to put on a special form of headgear just to do a little thinking?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Didn't Pay.
"You department store people have everything. It's a wonder you don't have a department to supply women with husbands."

"We tried that once, but the percentage of returned goods was too large."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PROPER HOUSING FOR THE FOWLS

Many Details That Must Be Considered by the Modern Poultry Raiser.

DESIGN SHOWN HERE IS IDEAL

Plenty of Sunshine Supplied and Nests Placed Where They Will Be Properly Shaded—Precautions to Be Taken Against Rats and Mice.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

There are many details that must be considered in building a modern poultry house. Formerly any shed that could not be used for anything else was turned into a poultry house and raising poultry for profit was a gamble from start to finish. The hens, in order to be profitable to their owner, must be as carefully housed as any of the farm stock. Sunshine and shade must be furnished to hens in order to keep them laying when the price of eggs is hitting the high spots. They require sunshine nearly all the time, and then, to show how stubborn they can be, they insist on doing all their egg laying in shaded, dark places. The illustration here is a design that is arranged with the idea of giving the poultry lots of sunshine, and at the same time the nesting boxes are placed so that they are well shaded. The roof is constructed on the saw-tooth principle, which insures plenty of sunshine on the roosts and the back part of the scratching floor. Dampness is a dangerous condition to poultry, and this is effectually prevented by having plenty of sunshine in the back part of the house.

The foundation of this building should be of concrete, as that is the best kind of insurance against rats, who often have the idea that a chicken house will make an ideal home for them. The connections of the sills to the foundation should be carefully made, so as to eliminate all drafts. Chickens stand the cold of winter very well, but a slight draft in their houses will often prove fatal. The walls of the building must be also constructed so that no stray breezes can blow in on the egg producers. The studding is covered carefully on the outside with building paper, and over this is placed drop siding. On the inside the walls can be handled in various ways.

In the ordinary climate of this country it is not necessary to put any kind of a wall inside the studding; the building paper and the siding furnish a wall that is sufficient protection against the weather. The disadvantage of a rough wall is that it furnishes a refuge for the various insects that are found in poultry houses. It is hard to paint a rough wall with white wash or crude oil so as to reach all the corners and cracks.

In high-grade poultry establishments the wall is finished with matched ceiling. This gives a very smooth surface that can be easily cleaned and kept free from vermin. Many people think that this is too much of an expense unless chicken raising is taken up on a large scale. A very satisfactory substitute has been suggested for this matched ceiling. Wall board has been tried in a number of instances, and very good results have been obtained. This gives a smooth, tight wall, and the cost is not very much.

The roosts are placed in the back part of the house under the roof. They are placed on standards that are supported by the droppings board that is placed directly underneath. The droppings board is made to fit the space at the back end of the building under the roosts, so that none of the manure will fall on the scratching floor. It is held in place by cleats that are nailed to the wall, and a center support. The nesting boxes are placed underneath the droppings board and are fastened to it. They are faced toward the back of the house, so that they will be dark. All the poultry house furniture is made so that it can be readily removed, which assists materially when the house has to be cleaned. Being built up off the floor also gives a larger space for the poultry to scratch in. The house should be cleaned regularly, and painted, as such activity discourages the vermin to a large degree.

The ventilation of a poultry house is one of the most important things with regard to the health and laying ability of the hens. Various methods have been tried, and the best one happens to be the cheapest, which makes it practical for everyone. Thin cotton cloth is placed over the window openings, which allows the air to circulate through the house without causing a draft. The poultry do not furnish enough heat with their bodies to take care of a ventilating system such as is used in cow stables.

The external appearance of a poultry house can be made very attractive. All the window frames, the door frames and the exterior trim can be painted white and the rest of the building finished in a darker color. The cost will not be much and the added appearance will make it more than worth while. Trim and pleasing looking buildings add much to the value of any farm or yard.

QUAINT OLD CITY IS QUEBEC

Traveler Tells of Remarkable Changes That Are Taking Place in the Famous Canadian Center.

"To one who knew Quebec ten years ago, that quaint and wonderful Canadian city presents remarkable changes," observed Horace T. Roesselles, a former resident of Quebec, now of New York, at the Shoreham. "I spent some weeks in Quebec recently, and was impressed by the great improvement. The city has lost none of its quaint characteristics nor discarded the mantle of medievalism that has singled it out from among other cities, but, combining in perfect harmony the new era with the old, she has become a mighty center of commerce as well as a city of antiquity, a link between the Canada now and the new France of yesterday. "Quebec is becoming annually a more important port of trade. To its docks come the largest ships in the St. Lawrence service, and there is every reason to believe that when the government transcontinental system is in full operation and the Quebec bridge has been officially opened, it will receive tremendous industrial impetus. Within 50 miles of Quebec are the largest deposits of asbestos in the world, while the value of the timber in its surrounding forests is incalculable. Twenty miles east of Quebec is the famous pilgrimage shrine La Bonne Ste. Anne, where miraculous cures are said to be effected. This famous place still attracts thousands of pilgrims every year."—Washington Star.

The Poet Escapes.

The makers of epigrams, of phrases, of pages—of all more or less brief judgments—assuredly waste their time when they sum up any one of all mankind, and how do they squander it when their subject is a poet! They may hardly describe him, nor shall any student's care, or psychologist's formula, or man of letters' summary, or wit's sentence define him. Definitions, because they would not be inexact or incomprehensive, sweep too wide, and the poet is not held within them and out of the describer's range and capture he escapes by as many doors as there are outlets from a forest.

A Disturbing Sound.

"There is no excuse for a man being run down by a motor car. All he has to do is to keep his wits about him." "Of course," replied the recent victim, in sarcastic tones. "There is nothing more conducive to rational thinking than a loud 'Honk!' heard unexpectedly in one's rear."

Lakes at Low Level.

Each of the five great lakes is lower than the last ten years' average. However, as Superior is only 1.48 feet below the high stage of June, 1876, there seems no immediate danger of its utter disappearance.

A person having had experience remarks that it takes a lot of experience to teach us that we should learn from experience.

Tomorrow, Saturday, is scheduled as "Fire Protection Day." We hardly know the intent of the parties who suggest such a day but if it means a clean up of com-bustibles and rubbish some one might well devote a little time to the rear of stores and public buildings in certain localities.

A late suggestion is a "State Architect."
Possibly that would be a good thing, if,
with one more big-salaried official to whom construction might be referred, we might get down to some official who has authority enough, so that every inspector, who came along, could not order changes and reconstruction of buildings of every name and nature that are in process of erection.

Although the milk shortage in this vicinity has not developed so seriously as was feared, one day last week New York city supply was short 200,000 quarts.
The weather was blamed but government milk experts call attention to the ever increasing quantities of fresh milk consumed by the manufacture of condensed and evaporated milk. This industry is reducing the amount of fresh milk available for city consumption. The dairy man does not have to handle milk so carefully when selling to condensed milk factories and gets about the same price for it. It may be found necessary to assure the city of their milk supply at any cost.

There is no doubt that it would be well for other states to follow the example of Rhode Island in its energetic campaign against billboards along the highway.
In that state advertising signs within the highway limits have been placed without the law and may be destroyed by anyone.
As yet signs erected on private property and along railway lines cannot be touched.
Property owners, especially in a residential district, are beginning to realize that glaring billboards lower the value of the surrounding land. It is also impossible for billboard advertisers to know the amount of returns or whether this method results in increased sale of their products.

Many critics of our navy, have found something to criticize in nearly every department of the naval administration.
Recently, however, two decided weaknesses have been brought to special attention which will probably be considered in the navy program for the coming year.
One is the need of additional scout ships.
America should be able to keep a hostile army from landing. It is the part of the navy aided by the coast fortifications to do this. However, there are long reaches of unprotected coast between our few forts, where the enemy could easily land by eluding the navy's scouts. At present the navy has just two scout boats, both out of date. The other weakness is the deficiency in the navy's personnel. Our ships are about 30 percent undermanned.
We have about 9000 marines now, of whom 2000 are in Haiti for an indefinite time. We could easily stand an increase of several thousand to our corps.

With the going down of last Saturday's sun the Republican and Democratic State Conventions had been held, platforms and principals enunciated and the State Campaign for 1915 was said to be ready to work on full time up to Nov. 24. Both of the leading parties make claims to platforms which, if endorsed by the people in November, will relieve them of many of its burdens financially and otherwise and yet there is a wide margin of difference in ways and means of accomplishing the desired end. The Democrats practically approve of the course of the President of the United States in handling the complications which have arisen in connection with the European war and judging by the enthusiastic demonstration in the nomination of Gov. Walsh for another term will roll up a good big vote for him in November. There was much new timber put in the Republican platform and suggestions which, while new as to real issue, have long been discussed in private and public,
i. e., reduction of elections and sessions

Man's Real Worth.

The prevailing fault of our time is the estimating of manhood by the accidents of life, rather than by its essentials. Not what a man has or but the things that are in him and shining through him—his thoughts, motives, springs of action; these constitute the man.—D. J. Burrell.

Frenchman's Model Bow.

The evolution of the modern bow has taken place almost entirely since the violin attained its final form, and has followed more completely perhaps than the instrument itself the development of violin music and the requirements of the player. It reached its highest perfection at the hands of Francois Tourte of Paris about 1870, whose bows have served as a model for all succeeding makers.

Juvenile Imagination.

"Don't you know that you ought to be careful not to leave finger marks on your books," said the teacher who was trying to encourage neatness. "Yes," replied the small boy. "Bill Jenkins told me about that. Some day the habit is liable to put the detectives on your trail."—Kansas City Journal.

Ought to Paint.

I ought to have painted last year, but I hated to pay $2 a gallon.
I've got to paint this year; it'll take a little more paint; I suppose 1 gallon in 10; and a little more work; I suppose 1 day in 10.
My job would have cost last year about $50; it is going to cost this year $55.
$5 gone. I suppose it'll be the same again, if I wait again.
What if paint goes down to $1.75 a gallon? $2.50 on the job!
I shan't wait; what a fool I was!

How Isinglass is Made.

The raw material of isinglass is the air bladders or sounds of fish, and is not of value except for this one purpose. In Russia, where the finest isinglass is made, the sounds of the sturgeon are cut open and steeped in water until the outer membrane separates from the inner; then the latter is washed and dried in the sun.

Who Spoils the Children?

There was a discussion held recently among a crowd of men about the spoiling of children. Some of the men said it was the father's fault: "They give the boys about the same amount of time every day that it takes them to shave. If they took the job of father seriously and really put some time and thought on it, there would be a different story." But most of the fellows seemed to blame the mothers.

ARCHER WELL MARKED

Fastest and Most Deadly of Throwers to Bases.

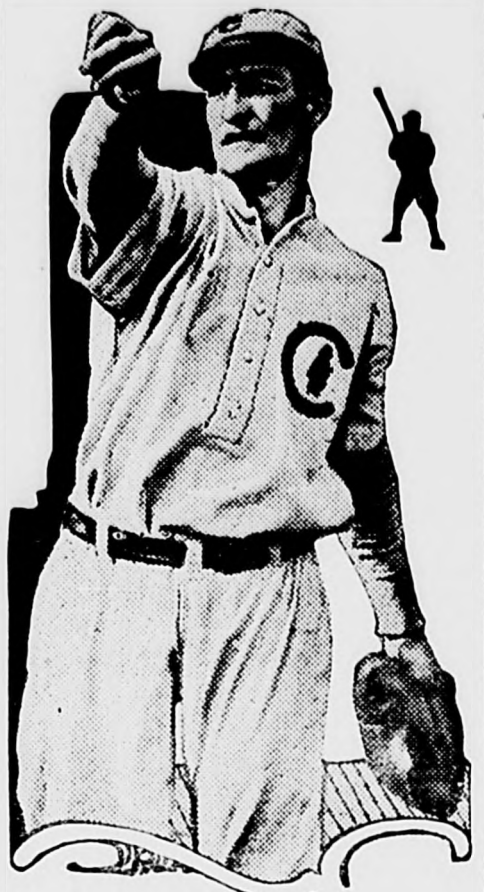

Impossible for Great Catcher to Straighten Right Arm, Which is Shorter Than Left—Hand Battered by Many Foul Tips.

Jimmy Archer, the Cub catcher, is probably the most bungled-up ball player in the big leagues.

James Archer, humble employee of a cooperage shop, fell into a vat of boiling tar and seared his good right arm nearly to the bone. By that freak of fate came the uncanny art, the all but impossible skill which has made the great Cub backstop unrivaled in class. Archer is the fastest, the most deadly of throwers to the bases. He is the nonpareil of all catching wizards. His height is medium, his weight the same.

First of all, his throwing arm is permanently bent and stiffened at the elbow. It is impossible for the great catcher to straighten it, and it is fully an inch shorter than the left.

The forearm is deeply ridged and scarred from the effects of the burns sustained in the accident at the cooperage works. The hand itself has been fearfully battered by foul tips, wild shoots and the various fatalities that lurk for the unwary catcher.

The thumb has been dislocated and the joint is swelled to double its natural size. The index finger has been broken no less than four times and every joint is gnarled and bent.

The bones of the second finger have been shattered on three occasions, the third once. The little finger has been dislocated several times and its joints creak like a rusty hinge.

Lastly, the elbow suffered a compound fracture when he ran into a concrete wall in Brooklyn. It would be hard to picture an arm apparently so little adapted to throwing the ball swiftly or accurately.

And yet this misshapen, battered arm is the most deadly, the most dreaded whip on the National League circuit.

Comiskey Sets High Marks.

Eddie Collins for $50,000, Jackson for $30,000 in money and players, Chappelle for $18,500, Schalk for $12,500, Felsch for $12,000 and Blackburn for $11,500—these are the high marks set by Comiskey in recent years in buying ball players. They stand as the record of all magnates.

Fred Clarke Quits Coaching.

Fred Clarke of the Pirates does not go to the coaching line any more, and has been criticized for it. His reply is that he is of more service to his team on the bench, where he can advise the young players, and he should know.

RUN-AND-HIT PLAY

Not always is the baseball conversation of the first-day lady fan as replete with nonsense as the struggling cartoonist pictures it.

At a major league game the other day one of the fair attendants shot this at her escort, following a play in which the runner, starting with the pitch, had raced from first to third on a short single to the outfield:

"Why do they call that the hit-and-run play?" she asked when her partner had quieted himself after the usual exertions in appreciation of a sensational play, during which exertions he shouted, "Some hit-an'-run, kid—great!"

"Why, err, 'cause it's a hit and then run play," was his unthinking reply.

"But it's not," she argued. "He ran first and then the other man hit it. I would understand it better if you called it the run-and-hit play."

How about it?

Daily Thought.

Suffering becomes beautiful when anyone bears great calamities with cheerfulness, not through insensibility but through greatness of mind.—Aristotle.

Covering Food.

Use paper bags to cover food or milk that is in a pitcher. This will keep out the dust and there is no danger of slipping off as with a plate.

If Animals Could Speak.

It is a startling fact that if some animals could tell their life history they would be able to recall events which happened hundreds of years ago. A Russian eagle, for instance, would be able to remember watching with greedy eyes as one by one the French soldiers under Napoleon fell exhausted out of the ranks in their awful retreat from Moscow in 1812. There are crocodiles alive in India today which saw the first English traveler set foot there, while there are whales in the sea which may have skirted the coast of France when it was invaded in 1415. A great many elephants could recall historical events of a hundred years ago, while there are ravens still living whose memory could go back twice that period.—London Answers.

A QUEEN AND A STYLE.

Handkerchiefs Are Made Square Because of a Royal Whim.

It is not necessary to insist on the utility of the handkerchief, for no one will contest it, but why should it be eternally woven in the stereotyped form of a square? The square may be large, the square may be small, but why square instead of oval or oblong? The unfortunate young Queen Marie Antoinette is responsible for the shape of the handkerchief.

On Jan. 2, 1785, a royal command was issued that henceforth the regulated form of the handkerchief should be in the form that we are so accustomed to see. Before this we are led to believe that divers forms were used—triangles, heart shaped, points of a star, etc.

These individual conceptions did not please her majesty. She carried her complaints to the pliable Louis XVI. It was her belief that the handkerchief in the form of a square was more elegant.

At the above date Louis had the following decree issued: "The length of all handkerchiefs manufactured in the kingdom shall be equal to their breadth."

During all the changes of government in France, from the revolution to the third republic, the law passed under Louis XVI. is the only one that has been immovable, as far as things to be worn are concerned. It has defied every change, and the rest of the Christian world has in this respect faithfully followed the wishes of Queen Marie Antoinette.—New York American.

CHARM OF VENICE.

"The White Swan of Cities" It Was Called by Longfellow.

Venice is the mecca of tourists because of its beauty and its history. It was the link connecting Rome and Athens. It felt the influence of Arabia and of Persia. It saved some of the Greek masterpieces from oblivion. Its architecture shows the effect of all the ancient civilizations. Seated on its 117 islands, with canals for streets, it has been renowned as—
 The pleasant place of all festivity.
 The revel of the earth, the masque of Italy.

Longfellow called it the "white swan of cities," and other poets have celebrated its glories above those of any other city of the world. Its political history is of entrancing interest. It is saturated with romantic traditions. The numerous churches, the bridges, the tombs, the palace of the doges, the old library, the campanile and the Academy of the Arts are among the most attractive show places of Europe. The masterpieces of those master artists of the sixteenth century, Titian, Tintoretto, Giorgione, Bellini, Paolo Veronese, Sansovino, Palladio and Daponte, have given city undying glory.

In Venice the renaissance is seen at its best and at its worst. Realism and idealism have vied for mastery. Perhaps in no other city of the world is there preserved such a rich collection of the styles of painting and architecture of the different centuries.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How Hot Top Hats Are.

Tests with thermometers have been made to show how unhygienic men's top hats are. A thermometer kept in a top hat showed an inside temperature of 90 degrees when the outer air stood at 77 degrees and of 108 degrees when the temperature rose at noon to 90 degrees. In the evening there was a temperature outside of 68 degrees and inside of 88 degrees.

Telephone By-Ways

Hundreds of small villages, away from main-travelled roads, are readily accessible to salesmen who know how inexpensive and how easy it is to telephone these places from convenient junction points.

Sometimes it is impossible to "make" all these places each trip, or personally to visit each customer oftener than once a year.

A telephone call is the best known substitute for a personal visit. It keeps one's personality alive. It gratifies the customer. And frequently it pays for itself a hundred-fold by the casual re-orders it induces.

There will be no toll charge on a Particular Party Call if you are not connected with the person whose name you have given to the Toll Operator.

THE GREEN MANIKIN

A Story With "Heart Interest"

By AGNES G. BROGAN

When David Bronson heard an American speaking voice in that little far-away Parisian restaurant an emotion that was surprising surged within him. "So this was what had been the trouble of late, this cause of his unfinished book—homesickness, pure old-fashioned homesickness."

Long ago, as a lad, he had realized this desperate feeling. Now the sound of that familiar tongue brought back a longing to be "among his own" which was almost unbearable, back again in "little old New York," for from her accent the speaker had also lived in that vicinity. Bronson whirled about to look at her. Demure and unaware of admiring glances, she sat at a nearby table, "conspicuously simple" in her close fitting black suit and turban.

Bronson struggled against an uncontrollable desire to hear again that soft voicing of his mother tongue, then with a muttered, "May I?" sank into a seat at the opposite side of the table. The restaurant being unduly crowded, his intrusion was calmly taken for granted. Happily absorbed, he gazed at the lovely, downcast face of his companion, and she, glancing up at last, smiled. A frank, engaging smile it was, like that of a friendly child.

"The salt?" Bronson asked politely, while the girl's smile deepened.

"So you, too, are American," she said. All the pent-up longings of the man's home yearning soul broke forth at her question.

"American—yes," he answered, "and if you could but know the joy it gives me merely to be again in the presence of an American! I might have sought out my countrymen here, I suppose, but"—he laughed shortly—"I did not recognize my need until I heard your voice."

The girl leaned impulsively forward. "I know," she breathed. "Oh, I know! For weeks I've been fighting off the desire to go back. Sometimes it was almost too strong for me. I've got to stay here, you see. I must, until—"

"Until," he prompted gently. The girl drew back, continuing her meal. "Until I make good," she answered quietly.

"Student?" the man questioned. She nodded her head.

"There are so many of us," she said ruefully, "would be artists, musicians—mostly failures!"

"And you?"

The girl's low laughter ended in a wry smile. "I'm an art failure," she replied, with a shrug of the shoulders. Bronson's quick glance was sympathetic.

"Perhaps not," he encouraged. "Better stick it out a little longer and see." She arose, drawing on her gloves, and stood looking now on the gloves, now on him.

"I intend to," she answered brightly. With visible regret the author also arose.

"Pardon the boldness of a fellow American," he entreated, "but may I not hope to see you again?"

"Why not?" the girl carelessly responded. "I dine here every day."

So it happened that the small table beneath the window came quite naturally to be a place of simple confidences, for comforting recollections of home beloved scenes and home happy times. To the man this one hour was a sort of panacea for all the trials of a troubled day. About it his dreams centered as a reward for nightly hours of writing. And the girl's open pleasure in these meetings was a constant growing joy.

"Do you know," she asked in her ingenuous way, "I cannot get over the idea that I have known your face before? It was strangely familiar from the first, and yet—"

Then David Bronson knew that his hour of announcement had come. It had been a gratifying thing to hide for a time from the paths of fame and to feel that his unknown personality had powers of its own to awaken interest and pleasure. With a sigh he drew forth his card and placed it before her.

"David B. Bronson," the girl read aloud, while recollection widened in her eyes.

"Not," she said in a tone of awe—"not David Bronson, the author?"

He nodded abruptly.

"And you are writing a book over here," she went on slowly, "a book with a French setting perhaps and one of your wonderful American heroines?"

"The heroine," he confessed, "proves a disappointment. She is so exactly what she seems to be—commonplace, no human heart interest."

The girl turned wearily aside. His admission of greatness seemed all at once to put him far from her presumption of friendship.

"Look about you," she said. "You'll find human heart stories among us all."

Bronson got hastily into his coat. "Just this once," he begged, "allow me to walk with you."

Heretofore this request had been refused. Now the girl deliberated. "You may come," she agreed.

Down the sunlit narrow street they went, crowds jostling her slim figure against the shelter of his arm—on through poorer districts and poorer until where the limit of dingy shabbiness seemed to have been reached the girl paused.

"There"—she pointed at the top of the tenement—"is my home."

"Home!" the man breathed contemptuously; then, with wondering pity he repeated the word, "Home!"

"Goodby," said the girl and extended her hand.

"Goodby until tomorrow," reminded the man, his smile unchanged.

Smiling, too, she went up the narrow stair, but when tomorrow came she was absent from her place at the restaurant table. An atmosphere of unaccountable cheerlessness pervaded the sunny niche near the window. Bronson fretted impatiently at the girl's delay. He had intended to inquire today more particularly into her manner of living. His night had been troubled and wakeful at the thought of her bright presence, braving the struggle for existence. What sacrifice and deprivation might she not be undergoing for a dream of art which might be no more than a dream! This, at least, his own knowledge could decide for her if she would come. But the opposite chair remained vacant.

"Mademoiselle comes not today," the garrulous waiter remarked. "Mademoiselle, 'the green manikin,' is absent."

Bronson sat up with a start. "Mademoiselle who?" he asked rather sharply.

"She who dines with you," the waiter impudently replied. "Mademoiselle who is what you call 'manikin' or model for the great modiste. Surely monsieur has heard of the green manikin from Franquetta's."

Yes, Bronson had heard, remembered having seen the model pictured in Franquetta's window, a graceful figure clad always in garments soft tinted as the ocean's foam, and the model was his frank faced student—she of the tenement room. The two seemed irreconcilable.

Abruptly he left his untasted meal; a satirical smile curled his lips. So his sympathy had all been wasted, imposed upon. The green model of Franquetta's was evidently in no need of pity.

For a moment he hesitated before the glittering letters of the modiste's sign, then passed into the miniature theater. Before the parted curtain he waited, watching tensely the girl's figure framed in the gleaming lights. Clad in bright green from shoulder to satin heel stood the girl whose appealing presence had so deeply stirred his heart.

Mechanically, automatically, like some manikin in a play, she moved across the brilliant stage, displaying to an admiring audience the beauties of her costume. Bitterly the man turned from her steady painted smile to pass out again into the street.

So the struggling art student, the beloved little student, had never been. Across his very memory of her must ever dash that crimson painted smile. He frowned disapproval when next day the girl herself slipped quietly into her accustomed seat.

"May I tell you," she asked, "the story of a green model who, unlike your difficult heroine, is not exactly as she seems, not exactly commonplace? Her story may even have heart interest."

Wondering, he silently bowed his head. The girl laughed tremulously. "Fame is an illusive thing," she quoted. "One may more quickly find because of one's ability to wear a certain color than for the reward of tireless years of study. Over in America my old father and my mother and the sister who has always been sick wait for a success in art which was prophesied surely for me. To this purpose were carefully—oh, so carefully—hoarded the savings of years. This had also been my father's youthful dream—to go abroad and perfect his own sketches, to achieve fame which critics promised. Marriage and later cares had forced this dream aside, but now it was to be fulfilled, gloriously fulfilled, in myself, the daughter."

"But that which had seemed an assured inherited talent at home became here a doubtful promise, and at length the savings were gone—all gone! Do you see, then," she cried passionately, "what I have been doing? Deceiving them all along; writing, as I fancied the glow on their faces, of how one sketch had been accepted, of how another brought the check enclosed, and all the time—the time I was but a dressmaker's model, a manikin in green. How else could one make money here alone in a foreign land? But now"—her voice broke despairingly—"how dare I go back, I with my mocking boast of art?"

Something gripped hard at the man's throat, and his hand reached out to clasp the girl's.

"Tomorrow," he said slowly—"tomorrow I want to see those sketches."

Tomorrow he saw them. As he turned them over, looking intently at each, an expression of admiration gathered on his face. When he came to the last he looked up at her and said:

"It's the old story—genius stooping to feed on crumbs from the rich man's table while it secured recognition."

And to two old people seated before their farmhouse door there came one eye a letter. "Read it," said the mother. "It's from our girl beyond the sea."

The old man glanced quickly back from the closely written page. "Why," he cried—"why, she's to illustrate that great author's new book, mother, our own little girl!"

In speechless joy they gazed into each other's face. Then together they finished the letter.

"Books and pictures must ever wait for love," wrote the girl. "So David Bronson and I are coming home together. Your daughter has married the author."

Tuberculosis.

We should quit thinking of tuberculosis as a hereditary disease and realize that it is an infectious disease. In extremely rare instances a call may be born with tuberculosis, but such instances are so rare that they are unimportant.

Teuton and Celt.

Germans are lasting in their sympathies and antipathies and leisurely in their mental processes. It takes them a long time to make up their minds and longer to get an idea out of their heads. In their thinking they try to grasp more things at a time than does the Celt.

Explaining Baldness.

Dr. C. T. Ewart, a Scotch scientist, says his researches have led him to believe that the loss of hair on man's head and other parts of his body is a certain indication of intellectual progress. "This fact," he maintains, "explains to some extent the baldness which is always so prevalent among college professors and members of learned societies."

Timber for Shingles.

For shingles alone, 750 million feet of timber is cut in that part of the state of Washington which lies west of the Cascades.

At every election issues are forced upon the people that do not solve the unjust economic conditions.

That these exist very few deny. But, because of the complexity of civilization and conflicting selfish interests, men are divided as to methods of solution.

With the adoption of just economic laws, exploitation of labor will decrease, avenue of employment will be widened, there will be less involuntary idleness, and a restoration of the merchant marine in the foreign carrying trade can be affected.

WEYMOUTH BOARD OF TRADE.

Another Season Opened, Committees Report, Important Questions Discussed and Committees Appointed.

On Wednesday evening, the Weymouth Board of Trade, after three months of vacation, opened for another season's work in the Clapp Memorial building.

The meeting was called to order at 8.15 by the president, Geo. Downing, and a fair representation of all parts of the town was in evidence.

The committee on membership reported 21 new names and they were balloted for and elected.

Fred S. Sampson, for the committee on streets and sidewalks gave a brief review of the Washington Street State road and also stated that as several members of his committee were members of the Town Planning board the work of necessity had run together and much was being done which would be heard from at the next March meeting.

A communication calling for action in regard to a Norfolk County Farm school proved of much interest. The proposal is to authorize the County Commissioners to issue bonds not exceeding $75,000 for the purpose of establishing a farm school in the county. A hearing will be held at Dedham on this matter, tomorrow, (Saturday) and a committee consisting of A. P. Worthen, E. W. Hunt and C. J. Underhill was appointed to attend the hearing and also to present the claims of Weymouth, to have the school established within her borders.

M. Sheehy, chairman of the committee on Parks and Play Grounds, spoke of some features of the work and called upon the secretary, J. R. Walsh, who read a very elaborate and interesting report of the season's work and improvements made at the Weymouth Great Hill, the Beals and Webb parks and the need of parks in Wards 2, 4 and 5.

The problem before the Terminal Commission came up and A. P. Worthen spoke of the difficulty and delay in getting freight from distant points through the present complication of the Metropolitan terminal and the need of legislative action to improve the condition and Mr. Worthen, E. E. Leonard and the president were appointed as a committee to attend a hearing and legislative work for improvement in getting freight to points outside of the present terminals.

The main topic on the notice for the meeting was the proposed advance in street railway fares and this was extensively discussed in all of its lights and shades by Bradford Hawes and Henry Hanley of the Board of Selectmen, J. B. Denbroeder of the Pond Plain Improvement society, Walter L. Bates of the South Weymouth society, Walter W. Pratt, D. M. Kidder, M. Sheehy, P. J. Derrig and others. The evolution of the various companies which started and became a part of the present system was listened to, the lack of justice and equity in the transportation rates in regard to which Bradford Hawes in answer to our inquiry stated that there was nothing in any franchise which fixed or even intimated what the roads should or might charge for rides or how far a person might ride at any given price. The result of the discussion was the appointment of a committee consisting of P. J. Derrig, Walter L. Bates, J. B. Denbroeder, E. W. Hunt and Carmine Garafalo to investigate as far as possible the necessity on the part of the Bay State St. R. R. to increase fares on shorter circuits and then work for such legislative or other problems which shall be for the good of the public.

COMBINATION 1 DEMOLISHED.

Misunderstanding of General Alarm For George Strong Co. Factory Explosion Results Seriously For North Weymouth Department. Four Hurt.

As the result of a serious accident, while responding to the alarm for the George Strong Company factory explosion last Monday morning, Combination 1 of North Weymouth is out of commission for an indefinite period.

On leaving Engine-house 1 in North Weymouth, someone made a mistake in the box that rang-in, and Driver Charlie Marr, with District Engineer Hiram Nadell and firemen Stanley Torrey and Herman Collier aboard, raced over the roads toward Box 23 in Jackson square, East Weymouth.

When near the Odd Fellows Opera House, East Weymouth, Driver Marr turned out to avoid hitting a wagon. As it was on a curve, he could not get the machine back onto the crown of the road and it grazed one tree and crashed into another large elm. The auto was completely demolished and the occupants thrown out. Charles A. Marr, the driver, was pinned in his seat and one rib was broken. Hiram Nadell received serious internal injuries, while the two other occupants were badly shaken up. The machine was thrown sideways across the tracks of the Bay State Street Railway Company and the employees of the company brought their wrecking crew and removed the truck from the tracks. The Knox Motor Company, the manufacturers of the truck, were notified and came out from Boston and took the machine to their repair shops.

One Killed When Boiler Bursts.

Engineer Cornelius Condrick Killed and Several Hurt When Engine Room at George Strong Company Factory is Blown to Atoms. Side of Building Wrecked.

Cornelius P. Condrick of 576 Broad street, East Weymouth, engineer at the George Strong Company plant on Middle street was instantly killed when the boiler in the engine room exploded on Monday morning. Statements vary as to the exact time of the explosion, but a clock in the making room of the factory which was found after the accident had stopped at 7.39 and the clock was keeping the exact time before the catastrophe.

Mr. Condrick was seen to go from the factory to a bonfire in the rear and throw some baggage on it and then return to the building by the family living in the house next to the factory. They state that it did not seem as though he could have gotten inside the door before there was a tremendous roar and the whole boiler room seemed to rise in the air.

Immediately after the explosion Emerson R. Dizier entered the ruins, his entire thoughts being on the engineer he had seen enter the place just a few minutes before. He located the lifeless form and with the assistance of Harry Purchase and Norman E. Dizier cleared away as much of the debris as possible around the body, before the firemen arrived. The firemen were soon on the spot however and after hard work the body was removed. Medical Examiner John C. Fraser viewed the remains and pronounced death due to a fracture of the skull, shock and multiple lacerations. Undertaker Joseph W. McDonald then took charge of the body.

Fred V. Nolan, night operator at the telephone exchange across the street had just started for home but on hearing the explosion and seeing the mass hurled high in the air rushed back to the exchange and with the assistance of Miss Alice Howley sent out emergency calls to the Fire Department, all physicians in town and called Hollis' autos to the scene for use in carrying away the injured.

A general alarm was sent in from box 25 which called out the whole fire department but as fortune would have it there was not much of a fire and what there was, was quickly extinguished.

Doctors J. Herbert Libby, John C. Fraser, Joseph Chase Jr., Fred L. Doucette, Sommers Fraser and Rudolph Jacoby answered to the call for physicians and Miss Allen, the district nurse, ably assisted in caring for the injured.

Soon after the accident the police arrived and Chief Pratt ordered the ruins to be roped off.

As many as 2000 people were on the scene within an hour after the explosion and during the day as many more came to see the ruins. Tuesday, people flocked to the scene by hundreds from all the surrounding cities and towns, coming in automobiles, on motorcycles, bicycles, horse-drawn vehicles and on foot.

Graphic accounts of the explosion are given by those who saw it. The roar was heard for over a mile and the bricks, fragments of iron, timber and glass were thrown for several hundred yards. The boiler was thrown twenty feet in the air and landed at right angles to its original position. When the destruction caused by the accident is considered, everyone marvels at the fact that only one life was lost. The boiler room was a single story structure of brick, annexed to the north side of the factory and this was completely demolished. The windows in the main factory were broken and the structure on the north and east was badly smashed and splintered.

Some were quite seriously injured and were taken in charge by the physicians. Paul Dalto of 25 Lake street and Alfred Spiridi of 10 Madison avenue were taken in charge by Dr. Libby. Dalto received multiple injuries as the result of being thrown down stairs. Spiridi had his back badly scalded and has a punctured wound over his spine which penetrated the muscles and below the ribs. The wound was probably caused by a piece of glass or steel. He was probably the most seriously injured and was taken to his home and carried to the hospital on Wednesday for an examination and X-ray. An operation may be necessary.

Dr. Fraser worked over William Burns, 401 Front street, Weymouth; James H. Corcoran, 378 Broad street and William Fogarty of Lake street. Burns received several cuts around his head and other minor cuts on his body. Corcoran had two punctures in his right ear while Fogarty received a broken collar bone.

Dr. Chase waited on Frank G. Reed of 876 Washington street, who was severely cut, bruised and burned around his head and the upper part of his body.

There were more who were cut and bruised considerably, but did not need the services of a physician.

Many hair-raising accounts of the narrow escapes and exciting experiences of the occupants of the factory are being told.

Miss Nellie Lyons, had she been at her accustomed working place, would have been seriously injured if not killed as she worked on the side of the factory where it was blown to pieces, but luckily for her, she was called to the other side of the room just previous to the explosion.

Edward Powers, foreman of the stitching room says that he was on the side near the boiler room and was thrown backwards by the impact while racks and other debris was hurled upon him. Fortune favored him, as the only ill effects he has noticed is a lameness in his left arm.

Emmett Reddy, foreman of the cutting room looked from the window and saw the mass hurled high in the air and the next thing he knew a timber 2 by 8 about 25 feet long came crashing through the roof about 6 feet from him and stuck there one end through the roof and the other on the floor.

Louis B. Seabury, foreman of the shipping room was covered from head to foot with dirt and soaked with water which was luckily from the cold water pipe.

The loss, it is estimated will reach $10,000 which is covered by insurance. Edwin Clapp & Sons very kindly offered any assistance possible in the way of putting through rush orders and offered to hold in any other way they could.

The plant is to be started again as soon as possible and is hereafter to be run by an electric motor.

OTIS CUSHING, DEAD.

Ex-Chief of Local Fire Department Passes Away at Age of 78 Years.

Otis Cushing, ex-chief of the Weymouth Fire Department and a long-time resident of South Weymouth, died at his home on Pleasant street last Wednesday morning at the age of 78 years.

In 1860, Mr. Cushing came to Weymouth and entered the express business for himself, operating between this place and Boston.

Mr. Cushing was for more than 25 years a member of the fire department. He was a charter member of Willey Lodge, I. O. O. F.; a member of Orphans Hope Lodge, A. F. & A. M.; South Shore Commandery, Knights Templar, and Panchapha Chapter, R. A. M.

He leaves a son, Lewis H. Cushing, and three daughters, Mrs. Anna F. Richards, Mrs. Flora G. Burrell and Miss Abbie R. Cushing.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon in the Second Universalist church.

FLYING SQUADRON IN TOWN.

Addresses Follow the First Supper of the Ladies' Social Union at the Congregational Church, East Weymouth.

On Wednesday evening in the auditorium of the Congregational church, East Weymouth, the Flying Squadron of New England, in the interest of National Prohibition, held an interesting meeting. Two speakers, E. Kershner and James H. Woertendyke, addressed the audience. N. S. Ferguson, soloist, rendered several selections accompanied on the organ by Miss Ethel F. Raymond.

Previous to the addresses, a supper was served to a large number under the auspices of the Ladies' Social Union. This was the first supper of the season, and the following committee had charge:

Mrs. George M. Hoyt, chairman; Mrs. Fred L. Alden, Mrs. Lawrence Drew, Mrs. Wallace Cowing, Mrs. Elijah Whitton, Mrs. F. H. Holmes, Mrs. D. D. Randall, Mrs. James Ford, Mrs. W. E. Dizier, Mrs. Minot P. Garey, Mrs. C. W. Bailey, Miss Carrie Randall, Mrs. John F. Cushing, Mrs. W. H. Cushing, Mrs. George White, Mrs. F. H. Langhorst, Mrs. Henry Lovell, Mrs. Eglbert V. Warren, Mrs. David O. Sterling, Mrs. Gustavus Pratt and Mrs. Henry C. Pratt.

Unconquerable Inclination.

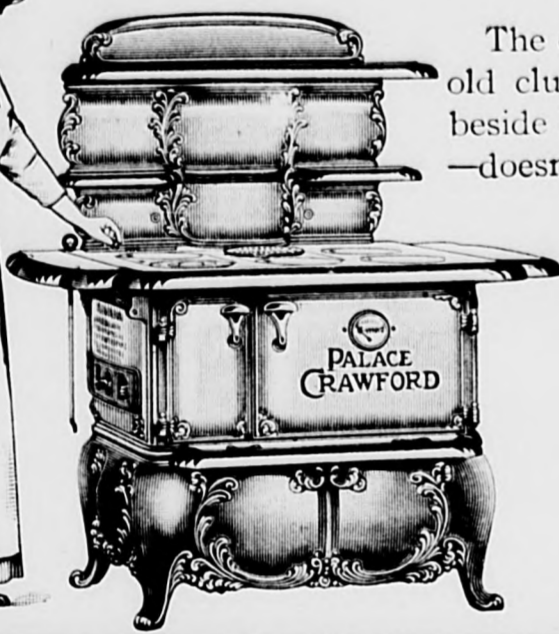

"I don't see why men insist on going to war," commented the thoughtful woman. "Well," said the querulous one, "it seems like some men would go almost anywhere rather than stay home."

Mr. Appleton of the Electric Light Co. offered Mr. Strong the use of a portable boiler owned by his company until a new one could be installed.

Mr. Fraser, the superintendent says that work will be resumed on Monday morning if possible.

The "Single Damper" in Crawford Ranges is the greatest improvement ever made in stoves. By one motion it regulates fire and oven—push the knob to "Kindle", "Bake", or "Check"—the range does the rest. Better than two or more dampers. Have you seen it? This Single Damper is patented—no other range has it.

The deep Ash Hod—instead of the old clumsy ash pan—with Coal Hod beside it (patented) is easy to remove—doesn't spill ashes.

Gas ovens if desired; end [single] or elevated [double].

BEGINNINGS OF NEW YORK.

Except One, Its Early Colonial Governors Were a Sorry Lot.

Queer were the instruments with which the early history of Manhattan Island was fashioned. Of the four Dutch governors not one was competent. Minuit was fairly wise, but was active in furthering the patroon system, feudalism pure and simple. Wouter van Twiller, who was five feet six inches tall and six feet five inches in circumference, was a fool; William Kieft was peevish, avaricious and dishonest, and old "Silver Peg" Peter Stuyvesant was a despot.

Of the English governors all but one, and he a shining exception, were as bad as the Dutch. Lord Bellomont was the partner of Kidd, the pirate; Lord Cornbury was a degenerate who painted his face and went slithering through the streets; Sloughter was a notorious drunkard; Lovelace, Hunter, Burnet, Montgomerie, Cosby and Clark were worthless; Nicolls and Andros have little to their credit.

The exception was Thomas Dongan. Few perhaps appreciate the debt America and the world owe to Dongan. The bill of rights or charter of liberties, which he drafted while governor and gave to the colonists, formed the basis of the Declaration of Independence which Thomas Jefferson wrote nearly a century later. It marked the first step in the march of events that led to the birth of this nation of free men.

Little, perhaps, did Dongan know of the mighty consequences of his act. How could he? He ruled but a portion of Britain's colony in America. New York, named for that ill-fated Duke of York who became James II., was a mudhole. Berlin was a village of 9,000. Petrograd was a marsh. Constantinople vied with London for the title of greatest city of the world. Boston and Philadelphia were more populous than New York. The trade of Salem was larger—Commerce and Finance.

CANINE SLAUGHTER.

When Dogs Threatened Paris During the Reign of Terror.

It is a curious fact that the French capital was once threatened by a horde of hungry dogs. This event was associated with many other and more startling ones of the reign of terror. It was due to a very natural cause. The greater part of the aristocrats who had fled or gone into hiding kept dogs, and very few were able to make arrangements for the care of their animals when they hurriedly left their homes.

The dogs, abandoned, took to the streets and shortly began to congregate in two packs, one occupying the Champs Elysees and one the Bois de Boulogne. Soon they became a public danger, as is evidenced by the duly recorded fact that Santerre, the brewer, proposed a law that all dogs should be hanged. So, in September, 1793, when thousands of starving animals were seeking subsistence in a city not over-provided with food, drastic measures were adopted against the Champs Elysees pack.

Two battalions of the national guard surrounded the area, leaving a gap toward the Rue Royale, while hundreds of men and boys "beat the cover." The game was driven up to the Place Royale, where troops made a battue of it. Three days consecutively was this repeated, and more than 3,000 dogs lay in the place.

It is said that one Gaspardin, who was ordered to remove the carcasses, being short of means to effect this, applied for the royal equipages. To the revolutionists this appeared a timely jest and the application was granted gleefully and with applause. So Gaspardin packed the dead dogs in the gilded coaches and made a state procession through Paris.—Washington Star.

An Atrocity.

Captain von Altheim was quartered with his lieutenant of reserves—a college professor in civil life—in the house of a Polish priest who had no living language to his tongue but Polish and Russian. The captain rubbed up the dusty memories of his own school days and made shift to converse with his reverend host in Latin. Afterward he asked his comrade what he thought of the performance. The ex-professor's expression of pain was hardly dimmed by the thickness of his spectacles.

"It was only one more of the horrors of war," he said resignedly.—New York Post.

Falkland Breezes.

Probably nowhere else does the wind blow so hard and steadily as in the Falkland Islands. Tree growth is practically impossible owing to this peculiarity, and with such force does the wind sweep that region at times that potatoes and turnips have been known to be blown out of the ground. Grass, however, grows luxuriantly.

Australia's Bottle Tree.

The bottle tree is a native of Australia. It has a trunk of extraordinary expansion and disproportionateness which is greater when the ground is rocky. In fertile soil the trunk forms a cylindrical column, from whose summit the branches issue as from the neck of a bottle, hence the name.

Candid.

"Can you keep a secret?"
"Yes."
"But will you?"
"Oh, that's different. I don't know."

Well, the South Shore has a few, it might get rid of.

The latest from the point of obstruction of the Panama Canal is that orders have been issued for the blasting away of the tops of the hills overlooking the range of the recent slides. According to reports, the obstruction has been caused by elevation from beneath, which, as figured, was brought about by the pressure of the bordering hills upon the underlying state of less solid constituency.
As the dredging of the canal is incidental, establishing no condition of permanence so long as the hills press down and squeeze out from beneath the rocks and other stuff which block the canal, the attack on the tops of the hills looks to be the remedy of conditions there. The Panama canal is to be made permanently practicable only when fortified by nature as well as dug by the United States.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce and other bodies are organizing an attack on the proposed old age pension as they estimate the addition to the tax levy would be too great a burden for the people to carry. There is an amount of truth in this argument, but we may well ask, if not a general old age pension why should there be an individual or class old age pension or pension to State and National employees who have had a steady job for years at wages or salary far in excess of that paid to men of similar earning capacity in other than public service. We are not now criticizing the pension to soldiers and sailors who were disabled in action or by reason of hardship in the service, but why a civil service pension to be paid by men and women who earned much less wages in mercantile or manufacturing industries.

Paint Now.

If you ought to have painted last year and waited, how much do you think you made!

You'll buy an extra gallon this year.
There's $5 or $6 for paint and labor.
You think you wait, but you will; you can't stretch paint.

It is always: the longer you wait, the more paint and wages. Besides what paint is for. What is it for?

every such a winner but the public does not hear about them. Playing "war brokers" means big commission for the brokers, for the game involves constant buying and selling. Even the brokers are commencing to be scared. For the past two weeks the average sale of shares each day has been about a million and a half. The officials of the stock exchange seem determined to curb the tide of recklessness for they see inevitable results.
The question will be asked, "Why was such gambling permitted? It is hoped Boston and the rest of the country will not follow New York's example. After a time, when a few thousand people have lost their savings, the game will blow over, and people will come to their senses but it is regrettable that it will cost them so much to learn their lesson.

Why Blue Veils Are Best.

Blue veils preserve the complexion, because they diminish the effect of the scorching rays of light.

Non-Conformist.

Trout, according to the common law of angling, are addicted to dark flies on bright days and bright flies on dark days. What is there to be said, therefore, for the judgment, the common sense or the eyesight of a three-quarter pound fish who rose in a foot and a half of crystal water and seized avidly upon a large "white miller," the time being high noon and not a cloud in the sky?

GREATEST SLOW BALL

Wise Men of Baseball Never Agreed on Old Question.

Hard Hitters Watched for Clark Griffith's Teaser, but Never Seemed Ready for It—Peculiarities of Other Men.

A baseball fan has asked, to decide an argument for the name of the pitcher who, in all baseball history, had the greatest slow ball.

That question has been put to the wise men of baseball many times, and they have never agreed. Old Hoss Radbourne, Clark Griffith, Hank O'Day, Virgil Garvin, Christy Mathewson, Otis Crandall, Russ Ford, Fred Falkenberg and Eddie Summers have been named.

Summers, with Detroit in 1907, and part of 1908, had a wonderful slow ball. It was his "knuckler." After a time gripping the ball tore his finger nails to the roots, and he lost the grip that made him a winner.

There are four good present-day slow-ball hurlers—Russ Ford, with his "soap-bubble" ball; Falkenberg, with his "reverse emery;" Mathewson, with his "fadeaway," and Crandall, with his "snake curve."

Crandall went to the majors at an age when most pitchers are nearly all in and his arm was none too strong. He was a wonder for a few innings, and McGraw used him to finish games for faltering fast-ball pitchers.

Batters say Crandall's slow ball floats up as big as a balloon, but when hit won't go anywhere. The trouble is, watchful batters can tell when the ball is coming, for Crandall has to expose his peculiar grip of the ball when preparing for delivery.

Ford mixes his slow ball with speed and the "spitter."

Falkenberg says he copied his slow one from Virgil Garvin when both were with Pittsburgh. Falty grips the ball far back in the palm of his hand, holding it between the butt of his thumb and the palm and releasing the ball without friction, so it hardly revolves as it sails to the plate.

Matty's fadeaway breaks in on top of the bats of right-hand batters so even if they hit it they cannot send it far.

Batters always watched for Clark Griffith's slow one, but they never seemed ready for it. Griff had an uncanny knack of pitching just what the batter did not want.

Feds Sure of Compton.

The officials of the St. Louis Federal league club are quoted as saying that despite Pete Compton's sale to the Boston Braves he will be with the Sloufeds next year. They apparently are quite confident that the reserve clause in the contract he signed with Kansas City and which is transferred to Boston can be broken, but that has yet to be proved.

QUERY OF AN IDAHO MAN

A sports writer took a friend from Idaho out to the game at the Polo Grounds.

"That," said the sports writer, pointing to the Detroit outfield, "is the greatest outfield in baseball."

Veatch muffed a fly. Cobb made a weak throw trying to cut off a run. Crawford misjudged a single, making it a triple.

"You'll see some great base-running today," the sports writer said later. "Cobb and Maisel in the same game. Great stuff. Both clubs are good on the sacks."

A little later the Yank base runners threw the game away by bonheaded base-running.

The game over, the man from Idaho turned to the baseball writer and said:

"Do you think you'll like writing baseball, when you get accustomed to it?"

BOX STALLS ARRANGED FOR

Haymow and All Other Appurtenances Are Provided For as They Should Be—Gambrel Roof One of the Strongest of Its Features.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A good general barn is often required on a farm, where it is not advisable to have a big barn separate for the dairy cows and for horses. In the general barn shown in the illustrations, room is provided for 12 cows and 4 horses. In addition to this there are two box stalls that can be used for any kind of stock. The box stalls each have an entrance from the outside and are thus well separated from the rest of the barn. It is a very good plan to have at least one box stall in a barn, and it is even better to have two or three. In case valuable stock, such as an expensive herd bull or a stallion is kept, it may be necessary caution that must be made with this kind of a door. The top and bottom parts must be carefully beveled where they meet, so that the door will be stormproof in the winter time; otherwise the draft through this opening may keep the barn too cold.

The part of the barn occupied by the horses is shut off from the rest of the barn by swinging doors. It is desirable in a combination barn to have the horses and cows separated as completely as possible. In this barn the doors close both the litter alleys and the feed alleys except when they are in use. The box stalls are in the same end of the barn as the horse stalls.

The ventilating system is taken off by two foul-air shafts. These are placed in the partition between the box stalls and the cow stable on each side. These shafts reach from near the floor to the ventilator on the roof. This carries away the foul air from the stable proper and also ventilates the haymow.

Intake flues are provided which take the air into the stable just below the windows and discharge it near the ceiling over the stock. Good ventilation is absolutely necessary in a dairy barn if the best of milk is to be produced. The expense of installing a first-class system will be more than made up in the returns from healthy stock.

At the end of the barn in which the cows are kept is a silo which opens into a feed alley running between the mangers. This alley is equipped with a feed carrier running on a track. The work of feeding the stock in such a barn as this is much easier when the feed can be carried on a track running the length of the barn. The carrier runs into the horse part of the stable also. The silage for the cattle and the hay for both the cattle and the horses can be conveniently handled with this apparatus.

In back of the rows of stalls on each side of the barn are litter carriers, which assist in the handling of the

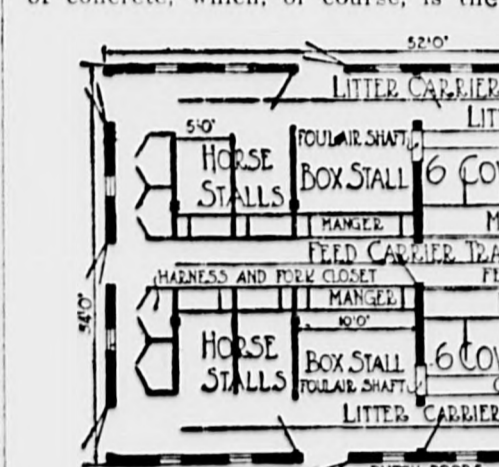

to keep him away from the other animals. Also in case a cow or a horse is sick it can be handled much better if it is away from the other animals.

The haymow is capable of taking care of a large quantity of clover, alfalfa, and straw. The roof is of the gambrel type and is self-supporting, so that there are no columns or posts in the central part of the mow to interfere with the storage of the fodder. The gambrel roof is one of the strongest of roof designs, so there will be no danger of it not standing the strain due to the wind and the snow. The floor under the haymow is made of matched and dressed flooring, so that the dust will not go through and bother the animals that are below. Many men consider that this is a useless expense, but if they have had any experience with a large barn they will know that matched flooring is absolutely necessary under the mow in a good dairy barn.

The foundations and floors are made of concrete, which, of course, is the best material for this purpose. The side walls are carried down four feet to the broad footings that support the walls. Along each side of the feed alley is a row of 5-inch wrought-iron columns. These are supported on concrete piers. Too much care cannot be exercised in making these foundations right. Nearly all the weight of the fodder, straw, etc., in the haymow is carried by these columns. Care must also be exercised in preparing the ground before putting down the concrete floor. It should be thoroughly compacted so that the floor will not sink in some place and thus crack.

book of homilies in Lambeth library, and 12 volumes of the manuscript journal of the house of lords were found in the Walworth road in a cheesemonger's shop, about to be used as wrapping paper for butter and lard.—London Chronicle.

Cabby's Opportunity.

The cabby regarded the broken-down taxi with a gleam of delight, but did not speak. The chauffeur began operations on his machine. He turned and twisted it, and banged it, and screwed it, but to no avail, and still the cabby spoke not. Then the chauffeur wiped his brow, and the cabby, still with the gleam in his eye, crossed over. "Ere," he exclaimed grimly, holding out his whip; "ere yer are, mister, 'it 'im with this!"

Kennedy—McEnroe.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, when Miss Clara Frances McEnroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McEnroe of 1126 Pleasant Street, East Weymouth, became the bride of James Francis Kennedy of South Main Street, Randolph.

The ceremony was performed at 8.30 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. Fr. Silney.

The bride was gowned in a dress of white gorgette crepe with pearl trimmings and her veil was caught in place with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid's dress was of coral chiffon taffeta; she wore a picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home at 10 o'clock. The couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McEnroe and two sisters of the groom, Misses Geraldine and May Kennedy, both of Randolph.

Music was enjoyed by an orchestra in charge of Miss May Hanley.

A wedding breakfast was served by Westover & Foss, caterers, of Boston. The house was beautifully decorated with potted plants, palms and roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy left for a wedding trip to Norfolk, Va., Washington, D. C. and Baltimore, Md.

On their return they will reside at North Main Street, Randolph, where they will be at home to their friends after January 1, 1916.

TIME IS THE TEST.

The Testimony of Weymouth People Stands the Test.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Weymouth people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? Below is testimony such as the sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. James P. Burns, 12 Granite Street, Weymouth, says: "My back and head ached and I had dizzy spells. My kidneys were weak, too. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they soon made me strong and well."

The above statement was given in August, 1911, and on May 22nd, 1915, Mrs. Burns said: "Doan's Kidney Pills are all right. Whenever my back gets weak or the action of my kidneys becomes irregular, I always use Doan's Kidney Pills and am given quick relief."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Burns had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

DISCUSS FARE QUESTION.

Selectmen and Board of Trade Committee Met in Town Offices, Wednesday Evening. Another Meeting Next Week.

A joint meeting of the Selectmen and a committee of the Board of Trade, to consider the schedule of proposed changes in fares and transfers by the Bay State Street Railway Company, was held Wednesday night at the Town Offices.

It was voted to ask for the sale in Weymouth of nine tickets for 50 cents as in Quincy and other places.

Also voted to oppose the withdrawal of reduced rate tickets to workmen.

A committee was appointed, consisting of Carmine Garofalo, Esq.; Albert P. Worthen, Town Counsel, and William J. Holbrook, Esq., to wait upon the street railway officers and endeavor to learn just what the proposed transfer changes mean.

It was the unanimous opinion of the meeting that the schedule of changes as presented ought not to stand.

After considerable discussion, the meeting adjourned to Wednesday evening, October 27, at which time all committees appointed by organizations in the town in opposition to the new schedule are invited to meet at the office of the selectmen.

FARM BUREAU MEETING.

Norfolk County Agricultural School the Topic.

The meeting at Dedham last Saturday to consider the question of authorizing the County Commissioners of Norfolk County to issue bonds for a sum not exceeding $75,000 for the purpose of establishing an agricultural school in the county was a well attended one and much interest shown in the matter. Weymouth was represented by Town Counsel A. P. Worthen, E. W. Hunt and C. J. Underhill.

Work along the line of such schools was explained by County Agent W. W. Munson; "Methods and Results" by James C. Poor, chairman of the board of trustees of the Essex county school and Fred Smith, director of the same school and also by Geo. H. Gilbert, director of the Bristol County school.

E. F. Richardson, president of the Norfolk County Farm Bureau, was presiding officer, and the discussion resulted in an unanimous vote to work for the appropriation and for the school and it is now up to the Weymouth delegation to work for Weymouth.

Auto Accident.

Robert B. Nash, aged 46, is confined to his home, 61 Broad street with two broken ribs and other injuries, and Joseph Caro, aged 13, is also confined to his home with multiple injuries, the result of an auto running into them while they were walking along Washington street near the residence of Henry A. Richards at 520, Wednesday afternoon. The auto, a Ford, was owned by E. C. Campbell of 164 Milk street, Boston and the chauffeur was Dana A. Perkins. Perkins carried Nash to his home where Drs. Adams and Jacoby worked over Nash for more than two hours before he began to regain consciousness. The Caro boy walked to his home nearly a mile away when he collapsed and was attended by a physician. Both Nash and Caro say that they were walking in the gutter when hit. An auto coming in an opposite direction caused Perkins to turn out his machine too far which caused the accident. Both Nash and Caro are reported as comfortable.

Auto Plunges Down Embankment.

Carlton White and his 4-year-old son, Stanley, had a narrow escape from serious injury, when the automobile which he was driving, suddenly left the road, near the railroad crossing on Commercial street between East Weymouth and Hingham. Something happened to the steering gear and the car plunged through a fence, down an embankment, through another fence, down to a meadow below. White and his son managed to stay in the car thereby escaping injury. The extent of the damage was a bent front axle.

EAST WEYMOUTH AUTO HITS CHILDREN.

Mary Grail, Aged 13 and Rose Angelo of Quincy Seriously Hurt Last Sunday.

Two Quincy children were injured, one probably fatally, when they were struck by an auto, owned and driven by Robert J. Boyden of East Weymouth, on Washington street Quincy last Sunday afternoon.

The children were coming through Audubon place into Elm place when, as they reached the junction of Elm and Washington street the car struck them as they stepped from the curbing into the street. Both the young girls were knocked down by the auto. The Grail girl, 13 years of age, received various injuries including a nearly severed ear, a badly bruised head and face, as well as probably internal injuries.

Rose Angelo, the other girl, 8 years old sustained numerous broken bones, a fractured wrist and severe lacerations of the head and face. Her body was covered with bruises, due to being thrown against the curbing.

Boyden when questioned by the police told them that he did not know that he had struck any one until he was hailed by a citizen who witnessed the accident, then he returned and assisted in carrying the injured girls to a doctor's office near by and did all he could to assist the injured girls in any way.

Teachers' Association Meet.

The Weymouth Teachers' Association held a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the High school on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Miss Martha J. Hawes, presiding. Miss Canterbury, one of two delegates chosen by the association to attend the meeting of the State Federation at Riverbank Court, Cambridge, on Saturday last, read an interesting report of the meeting. There was a social hour, with refreshments served by the Domestic Science class, under the direction of Miss Mildred Cowan.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Hon. Samuel McCall and Other Speakers at Bates Opera House.

The Republican Town Committee secured speakers and arranged a rally to be held at Bates opera house last Monday evening and the event was on time.

There was in the air around town a lack of the old time presidential campaign flag display, torch light and band music, but some three or four hundred people with a fair sprinkling of ladies found the way to the place of meeting.

At 8.15 Robert S. Hoffman, chairman of the Republican Town Committee, opened the meeting with words of greeting and aims of the Republican party in the present campaign and concluded by introducing Hon. Geo. L. Barnes as presiding officer for the evening. Mr. Barnes was warmly greeted and spoke of the cheering outlook which was to be seen in a once more united Republican party by the coming back of Progressives and pledges for the support of the ticket as it now stands. He paid a tribute to Hon. A. P. Langtry, Secretary of State and introduced him as the first speaker of the evening.

In many respects Mr. Langtry was the speaker as Mr. McCall and Mr. Coolidge were speaking in Brockton and not expected to arrive until later in the evening and he Mr. Langtry was to cover much of the ground which they might be expected to cover including the general depression in business caused by the tariff system of the present National administration and our largely increased state expenses due the multiplicity of salaried employees and unwarranted expenditures.

Mr. Langtry was followed by Senator Louis F. R. Langeller and Representative Kenneth Nash who spoke of their work in the House and Senate. M. E. Hawes, by special request spoke of the importance of the article which will appear in the warrant for the election relating to an Agricultural school in Norfolk County.

Ex-Senator Charles E. Burbank of Bridgewater was the next respondent and as he has just returned to the fold from the Progressive party he gave his reasons for so doing and urged other Progressives to come back.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr. McCall and Mr. Coolidge arrived from Brockton which was the 19th place during the day at which they had spoken. Rousing cheers greeted the new comers. Mr. Burbank completed his remarks and Mr. McCall was introduced as the next speaker, another greeting and when quiet was restored he proceeded to deliver his 20th address of the day. The Wilson Underwood tariff, the rapidly growing state expenses came in for censure and suggestions of a remedy and then the final speech of the night.

Mr. Coolidge is not a man who captures by his first utterance but every succeeding word brings you near to him and his subject and you soon find yourself a willing and earnest listener.

The meeting closed at 10.10 and will undoubtedly solidify the Republican ranks with a good sequel on November 2nd.

Telephone By-Ways

Hundreds of small villages, away from main-travelled roads, are readily accessible to salesmen who know how inexpensive and how easy it is to telephone these places from convenient junction points.

Sometimes it is impossible to "make" all these places each trip, or personally to visit each customer oftener than once a year.

A telephone call is the best known substitute for a personal visit. It keeps one's personality alive. It gratifies the customer. And frequently it pays for itself a hundred-fold by the casual re-orders it induces.

There will be no toll charge on a Particular Party Call if you are not connected with the person whose name you have given to the Toll Operator.

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

Trimming, scraping, digging about and manuring the trees, may be profitably done in this month.

Most old orchards need manure, and the time to apply it is late in the summer or in the fall.

Place all your wagons, carts, plows, harrows and all other implements under cover. If any of them need repairing it may be done during the boisterous days of winter.

The fall, after all of the garden plants have been killed, is the best time to clean up the trash in the garden and burn it to prevent insects from spending the winter in it and be ready to lay eggs next year.

Lighting is one of the most important things in a barn. Chickens like to lay eggs where it is dark, but dairy cows do not accomplish much unless they are given plenty of light.

Two boys, by putting into practice improved methods of poultry culture, made a flock of pullets produce 186 eggs each in one year, and, after paying the entire cost of the pullets, of the house, feed, etc., had a net profit of more than $1 per bird.

Where a surplus of eggs is produced, there is no trouble in disposing of them in the neighborhood at a premium above the price asked for so-called "fresh" eggs at the stores. Any prudent housewife will be glad to secure eggs from a neighbor, and pay a trifle more for them, knowing that she gets fresh eggs that are absolutely fresh.

Every farmer and gardener who intends to improve their crops by collecting superior seeds, tubers, and plants, should attend to this now, that everything may be ready in due season, that there may be no loss by delay in waiting for these things in the season of planting, or loss of time in procuring them in a more busy season.

When the soil is naturally uncongenial to the growth of the finer grasses, it is absolute folly to attempt forming a close and compact lawn, until it be first improved by artificial means. Loam, moderately fertile, is the best kind of soil on which to form a permanent lawn, and nearly all the finer grasses flourish on this soil.

By applying the manures which have accumulated during the summer, to the tillage land in the fall, and plowing them in, great losses are prevented by evaporation—losses which have scarcely been realized, because imperfectly understood. It should be remembered that there is no part of any decomposing vegetable manure but what is, either in its gaseous or solid state, the natural food of plants.

If spinach is wanted for next year sow this month in the open ground. Only the hardy varieties, such as winter, prickly or Bloomsdale, should be sowed. Spinach requires a very rich soil, so the land should be well manured before sowing. From 15 to 30 pounds of seed are used to the acre. Frequent cultivation with the wheel hoe is essential, just as with any of the crops. The crop is usually sowed in drills.

Before the snows fall, and the earth is closed with frost, take a careful survey of the whole farm and its occupants. Remember that the comfort of all your animals is in your keeping, and that if you expect them to return you a profit for the care and labor bestowed upon them, they must be well fed and comfortably sheltered.

Now is the time to see that all your houses are clean and tight and ready for winter. Don't put these things off until cold weather comes on. If you want winter eggs, you must make conditions such that the hens can manufacture them. If they have to apply all the feed you give them to making heat for their bodies and throwing off disease they can hardly be expected to lay.

There is a general impression among farmers that lime is a fertilizer. Lime is not a fertilizer. The prime reason for applying lime to the soil is to correct sourness or acidity, where such exist. The legume crops, such as clover and alfalfa, do not thrive on sour soil unless the soil is very rich. Sour soils are not well suited to the development of beneficial bacteria, which are found in the tubercles of these crops. It is mainly for the purpose of favoring the growth of these bacteria that lime is applied to soils. Ground limestone is the form of lime which is applied to soils.

Would Mean Much to Country.

The best authorities agree that the total of the crops raised from seed in the United States might be doubled by improved methods of farming. To do this would add $4,000,000,000 to the nation's wealth and the resources of its farm population.

Old Women.
Coleridge is reported as saying that there were three classes into which all the women past seventy, that he ever knew, were to be divided:—1. That dear old soul; 2. That old woman; 3. That old witch.

Hint for Mother.
A gate between two rooms has proved a blessing to one mother. It is fastened in the doorway between the nursery and mother's room. There are times when the mother likes to watch the children without being right among them. Often sewing or writing may be done more easily with the gate between the mother and the little one.

You ask us: "WHAT IS A ONE-CENT SALE?"

It is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price—then another item of the same kind for 1c. As an illustration: The standard price of Rexall Tooth Paste is 25c. You buy a tube at this price and by paying 1c more, or 26c, you get two tubes. Every article in this sale is a high-class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as we sell you every day at regular prices, and have sold you for years.

You ask us: "Can you afford to sell merchandise at these prices?"

Our answer is "We can not." This sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of their goods they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full size package of high standard merchandise for 1c. It costs money to get new customers and the loss taken on this sale will be well spent if the goods please you.

The Gazette & Transcript is printed and mailed Friday afternoons, and is for sale at all News-stands in the Weymouths and at the South Terminal, Boston.

All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.

Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 10 cents per line in the reading matter, or regular rates in the advertising columns.

Rallies are prevalent in town this week. Have you picked your candidate yet? Well don't forget to vote anyhow!

New Jersey went strong for the "anti"; will the Bay State do likewise or give the "fair sex" the vote so greatly abused by many men?

People in town are glad to welcome the new season of the Forum meetings in town. The meetings held thus far this fall have been very well attended indeed.

Commercial papers report big crops, abundant funds, demand for our surplus and a higher level of prices for field and orchard products. The higher level of prices however does not sound so well to the purchasers.

The people of Lovell's Corner will have the opportunity soon to show their appreciation of the work of Mr. White, by patronizing their new sub-postal station in every possible manner. We are told the Weymouth Center people miss the former station at B. F. Smith's considerably during the year.

For quantity and quality Massachusetts now stands at the head of the nation as an apple producing state and "back to the farm" is a growing sentiment and why not. We need more dairy stock, more hens and chickens, more hogs and milk less than 10 cents a quart, eggs less than 50 cents a dozen and pork less than 20 cents a pound.

The large number of accidents by autos due to persons crossing streets before looking to see if the street is clear, are to a large extent due to the carelessness of the pedestrians. An auto has got to keep in the street and persons who step off of the sidewalk directly in front of an auto and are injured thereby should take some of the blame themselves.

5471 deaths were caused last year through the carelessness of people walking on the railroad tracks. The New York, New Haven and Hartford has posted bulletin after bulletin calling attention to their danger of so trespassing and yet one every 96 minutes is killed on the railroad tracks in our country. The United States is the only nation in the world in which pedestrians are allowed to use the railroad tracks as footpaths. In Europe the tracks are fenced off and grade crossing are rare. By refraining from walking on the tracks and encouraging others to do the same, "safety first" will receive an impetus all over the country.

The Board of Selectmen with a committee from the Board of Trade held an interesting meeting this week to discuss the proposed changes and increases in fares asked for by the Bay State Street Railway Co. This is indeed a step in the right direction. What our selectmen and organizations in town think of the matter will have considerable weight at the Public Service Commission hearings next month. The meeting voted to obtain a clearer understanding of the transfer privileges, by a conference with railroad officials. That's another due idea as the majority have read and re-read the schedule as published by the road and have not been able to make head nor tail out of it. A meeting will be held next Wednesday evening, when the committees from all organizations in town who have held protest meetings, will meet and then some definite feeling of the entire district will be obtained to present at the November hearings in Boston on the matter. We understand that the raise of one cent for fares is not as objectionable about town as the changes in fare zones and other transfer changes.

Possible Way to Ward Off Lockjaw.
It has been found that a number of viruses are taken up by charcoal so rapidly that they lose their toxic properties for the tissues. Berlin scientists are now experimenting to see whether lockjaw cannot be warded off by the simple expedient of applying charcoal to the infected wound.

Saturate a cloth with water, wring it partially dry, and rub some soap well into it. Rub the cloth well over the iron, and you will find that it will remove any roughness or marks that might have been there.

High School Notes.

All high school students are invited to an "Andobon" lecture to be given in the High School Hall, November 1, 1915 by the Monday Club.

Weymouth High will play the Abington football team, at Abington this (Friday) afternoon.

The orchestra has gained an accomplished young member in Ashton Wilbur who joined last Wednesday afternoon.

The Boy's Glee club held its first rehearsal in the High School hall last Tuesday afternoon. The present members are as follows: second base Harold Burgoyne, Roger Burgoyne, Arthur Jordan; first base, Norman Dizer, Arthur White, Harold Walsh; second tenor, Herman Gardner, Frank Torrey, Lester Tower, Arthur Rousseau; first tenor, William Hill, Channing Libby, Norman Martin, Maurice Stone.

The Junior class at their first formal meeting decided on ten cents per month as class dues. They also are planning a Halloween party to be held in the hall, October 29.

All high school students interested in music are invited to join the Weymouth Choral Society.

The orchestra is now practising selections from "Ernie" and "Blue-White" a march written by Ernest Schmidt a popular pop concert leader in the past summer.

On Wednesday last, Miss Wheeler substituted for Miss Sheehy who was attending her brother's marriage at Winchester.

John Hughes a veteran of last year's football team has returned to school.

Isabelle Jones and Norman Dizer are at present representing the High school in the Weymouth Choral Society.

The Freshman class was tendered a reception by the Senior class last Friday afternoon. At 1.45 the Freshmen were received by the Senior class officers.

Miss Isabelle Jones, with the co-operation of a working committee, arranged a very clever program. A spooning, a dash and a whistling contest, were among the most enjoyable games played. The Senior class served ice cream and cake to the happy, carefree "Freshies".

W. R. C. Notes.

Members of the order went to the Soldiers' Home yesterday.

Donations were carried for the "Vets" by all members attending.

TIME IS THE TEST.

The Testimony of Weymouth People Stands the Test.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Weymouth people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? Below is testimony such as the sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. James P. Burns, 12 Granite street, Weymouth, says: "My back and head ached and I had dizzy spells. My kidneys were weak, too. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they soon made me strong and well."

The above statement was given in August, 1911, and on May 22nd, 1915, Mrs. Burns said: "Doan's Kidney Pills are all right. Whenever my back gets weak or the action of my kidneys becomes irregular, I always use Doan's Kidney Pills and am given quick relief."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Burns had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO.

The rain of Saturday filled up the cisterns and hogheads that had been dry so long, making it a day of rejoicing for those who have suffered the inconvenience of getting water from their neighbors.

Leo Miller Esq., of New York, addressed the Greenback Club of North Weymouth, last Friday evening, at Webster hall, on the hard times and its causes. He spoke two hours and a half holding the undivided attention of his audience.

A gentlemen in town says 60 years ago today (Wednesday Oct. 16) we had one of the hardest snow storms of the season, being 3 to 5 feet deep in some places. Quite a difference from today, warm, clear and thermometer 82 in the shade.

At the request of E. C. Bumpus, Esq., and others a public meeting in the interests of a Public Library, will be held in the rooms of the W. C. T. U., C. S. Williams' building, on Monday evening next, at 7:30 o'clock. All citizens interested in this important enterprise, are invited to attend.

It does not often fall to our lot to attend the fiftieth anniversary of wedded bliss of those who have passed this long space of time in the enjoyment of each other's companionship, but such was our lot when on Wednesday evening, in answer to an invitation, we met with a very pleasant company at the residence of Mr. Joseph Orcutt, at South Weymouth, to observe the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Orcutt's conjugal bliss, in an appropriate manner.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.

The arrangements of the Democratic party for this year are two representatives from Quincy and one from Weymouth.

By the arrangement of the Republican party with Quincy, Weymouth takes two of the nominees this year and Quincy one.

Not long ago our genial tax-collector in conversation with the Gazette reporter made the statement that he knew of twelve or fourteen houses in South Weymouth which had been begun or completed within a year.

The Active Base Ball club has closed the season with about $50 in the treasury. They have played sixteen games this year winning twelve and losing four. This is a good record when one considers the number of good players who have been taken from them by neighboring clubs.

Does the term "Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society" mean anything, so far as agriculture is concerned? Is Weymouth an agricultural town? No one will question but that we are industrial, but "agricultural" is a somewhat doubtful term to apply to our people.

English Mead.

A drink very little known in this country is an old English mead, according to Farm and Home. It allows any number of variations and to the children is as entertaining as the corner drug store with its soda fountain. The foundation is a sirup made of two pounds of sugar, two ounces of tartaric acid, half a cupful of flour, the juice of one lemon and three pints of water. Boil five minutes. When cool stir in the beaten whites of three eggs, and flavor with wintergreen. Bottle cool. Use two tablespoonfuls of this in a glass nearly full of water. Foam with a quarter of a teaspoonful of soda. Instead of filling the glass full of water you may add a tablespoonful of any fresh or bottled fruit juices—orange or lemon, chocolate, etc.

The Guild of Scriveners.

Little is heard, as a general rule, of the Guild of Scriveners. The company consists entirely of members of the legal profession, the duty of the scrivener being "to make charters and deeds concerning lands, tenements and inheritances and all other writings which by law are required to be sealed." No notary can, it seems, practice within ten miles of the Royal Exchange unless he is a member of the company.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Accessories.

"I'm going in for poetry," hisped the sweet young thing.
"Deep, intense, feeling poetry," thundered the man of letters, "is only written in a garret."
"Yes, I've heard that. So I've fitted up a beautiful Turkish den in ours."—Philadelphia Ledger.

No Such Thing.

The Sophomore—I wish you'd explain this line: "They kept the noiseless tenor of their way." What is meant by "noiseless tenor?" Professor Grouchmore—A noiseless tenor is one who is considerate enough to keep silent.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A Real Angel.

"Why do you always allude to Mrs. Wombat as an angel?"
"She isn't forever paying calls which must be returned. Angels' visits are few."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"It's a Pleasure to Bake with a Magee Range"

ONE damper movement throws the entire heat through the special Magee Sheet Flues, and sends it around five sides of the oven. This means a hotter oven and saves your fuel.

Magee glass oven doors make it possible to see the condition of your roast or your baking without stooping or opening the oven door.

Magee Ranges are equipped with gas ovens and gas broilers, as well as open burners on top of the range.

Old Way of Cleaning Clothes.
Before the introduction of soap, clothes were cleaned by being trodden upon in water.

To Start an Obstinate Window.
Take each window cord in hand at the same time and pull them out until the weights are up at the top. Let go suddenly and they will drop in place with sufficient force to start the window open, when no amount of pushing will do it.

And the Rose Has Its Thorn.
Successful conservation has its penalties. The beaver is doing an immense amount of damage in the Adirondack region, while in Pennsylvania the elimination of forest fires has caused the rattlesnake to multiply in great numbers.—Rochester Herald.

WASHINGTON SQ., WEYMOUTH 'PHONE 152BASEBALL RECORDS.Some Facts That Will Interest All Lovers of the Game.

The greatest number of bases on balls in a single season were given by Amos Rusie of the New York National League club in 1892. His total was 291. Adrian C. Anson in the sixteen seasons between 1876 and 1892 played in 1,582 games and made 2,252 hits. His grand average for the entire sixteen seasons was .344.

A world's record no hit contest was played at Winchester, Ky., May 10, 1900, when in a Blue Grass league championship game Winchester defeated Lexington 1 to 0. The battle went seventeen innings, and not a hit was made off Toney, the Winchester twirler, who fanned nineteen men.

A record for speed in playing a regulation nine inning game was hung up Sept. 19, 1910, at Atlanta, Ga., on the last day of the Southern league season, when the Atlanta and Mobile teams finished a full contest in thirty-two minutes.

In 1880 eight "called balls" entitled a batter to first base. This was reduced to seven in 1882, to six in 1885, to five in 1887 and to four in 1889.

The Knickerbocker club of New York adopted the first baseball uniform in 1849. It was blue and white.

In a game played July 22, 1906, between the Quakers and Reds Cincinnati did not make a single assist, the Phillies going out on flies or strikes.—Ed A. Goewey in Leslie's.

SLIPS OF THE TONGUE.

One of Them Told a Bishop a Truth He Didn't Care to Hear.

The misguided old lady who would persist in misapplying words with ludicrous results is as much among us today as she was when Sheridan wrote of her in his play, "The Rivals," two centuries ago. One dear old lady recently inquired of a well known professor whether soda water should be written as two separate words or with a siphon between.

A well known bishop who is very stout tells the story of a maidservant who had been instructed to address the prelate as "your eminence." Imagine his horror, however, when the girl dropped a courtesy to him one morning with the words, "Yes, your eminence!"

An American policeman became famous for his slips of the tongue. He used always to explain to recruits that "Third avenue ran paralyzed to Lexington," and on one occasion he proudly stated that he never paid any attention to "unanimous" letters.

A zealous temperance worker used to have a habit of confiding to her friends that certain persons were "adapted" to drink, while another gentleman in a mixed moment once asked a friend to open the window and "putrefy" the air.—London Spectator.

Just Like a Comet.

A well known astronomer and mathematician was on his way home one evening after having spent an hour or two in an observatory looking through a telescope at a comet.

Directly opposite him in the car sat a man with a loud voice, whose mis-information concerning comets would have supplied the material for a library and who appeared to be talking for the benefit of the passengers. The astronomer listened patiently for a time, then he said in a low tone to the man sitting next to him:

"Our friend on the other side of the aisle reminds me somewhat of a comet himself."

"How so?"

"He is emptying his head to make a long tale."—Youth's Companion.

A Curious Toy.

In an East Indian museum there is to be seen a singular instrument, invented for the delectation of Tippoo Sahib in his palace at Mysore. It is in the form of an automaton tiger, life size, represented in the act of devouring a British soldier, who lies prostrate under its paws. Inside this automaton is a rude organ, turned by a handle, and emitting sounds in imitation of the growls of a tiger and the moans of the dying victim. At the taking of Seringapatam this curious object was found in Tippoo's palace along with other evidences of the horribly cruel nature of the conquered prince.

Close at Hand.

A woman from the south visiting New York for the first time was much agitated when, after being conveyed through the Hudson tube, she found herself in another subway. Rushing up to a knowing looking individual, she asked in an agitated tone:

"Sir, do please tell me where is New York?"

"Lady," said he, with the utmost gravity, "it's right at the top of those stairs."—Harper's Magazine.

Where He Stood.

"Are you in favor of the income tax?" asked the innocent bystander.

"In principle," replied the prominent citizen, "but with some modification. For example, I think the tax should be collected only on incomes that are larger than my own."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Going the Rounds.

Beatrice—I think Amy Smith is the meanest creature I ever met! I showed her my engagement ring, and she said it was always too tight for her. Rosalie—Yes, she said exactly the same to me last year when I had it!—London Telegraph.

Labor is the genius that changes the world from ugliness to beauty and the great curse to a great blessing.—J. M. W. Turner.

Mad at Paint.
25c a gallon for paint is about $2.50 on the average job, and lots of men waited last year for that; but they didn't reckon; they got mad; wouldn't pay it.
There are times to get mad and refuse to pay; but when one's property needs protecting is no time to get mad and not paint.
Besides, it costs more to get mad and wait than to paint.
Getting mad doesn't do any good to your property; paint does it good by keeping-out; no water no rot; no paint, some water and rot; and a little rot is more than enough to make a man liberal towards his painter and paint.
Paint costs not a cent. All the paint in the world, so long as it keeps-out water, costs not a cent.

Albert Wilder At Rest.

Briefly, last week, we mentioned the death of Albert Wilder, who suddenly passed away on the morning of Friday.

Mr. Wilder was of the historic Wilder family of Hingham and was born in the southern part of that town on Nov. 22, 1864. He early devoted himself to music and musical instruments and when quite a young man established himself in East Weymouth as a piano expert and dealer in music and musical instruments.

Mr. Wilder was a man of unassuming nature and habits and yet, of that disposition which wins friendship in whatever community it may be placed and none knew Albert Wilder but to respect him and class him among their friends, and yet he showed the best in his home, with his wife and children to whom he was intensely devoted.

Funeral services were held at his late home on Shawmut street, Monday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. Edward T. Ford, D. D., of the Congregational church East Weymouth, and Rev. Emory L. Bradford, a former pastor of the same church, who spoke of his early acquaintance with Mr. Wilder, his many sterling qualities of character, among which were his devotion to his family and attachment to friends. The Beethoven Male Quartette of Boston added materially to the service in rendering the following selections: "Nearer My God to Thee," "Passing Out of the Shadow" and "Abide With Me."

Mr. Wilder was affiliated with Crescent Lodge I. O. O. F. and Orphans' Hope Lodge A. F. and A. M., the latter of which attended the funeral and its burial service was rendered, in part, at the home by W. M. Geo. F. Farrer and Chaplain M. E. Hawes, the quartet above mentioned, adding "Only Waiting."

The interment was in the cemetery near Mr. Wilder's boyhood home at South Hingham to which place the remains were accompanied by a delegation of Orphans Hope Lodge which completed its service at the grave. The bearers were William P. Denbroeder, Arthur V. Harper, Edward E. Merchant and Weston W. Cushing, all members of the lodge.

Mr. Wilder is survived by his wife, one daughter, (Blanche), wife of Harold W. Joy and one son, Ralph. Many rare and rich floral tributes were in evidence, testimony of esteem and friendship.

25th ANNIVERSARY.

Monatiquot Lodge, K. of P. Holds Gala Celebration.

Monatiquot Lodge, Knights of Pythias 83 of Braintree, dedicated their new quarters in the P. O. Building and also celebrated their 25th anniversary on the evening of the 25th, the full board of the Grand Lodge performing the ceremony. A large transparency the work of E. G. McGill indicated the location and as one entered, the word "Welcome"—in gold, greeted the eye. A sign K. P.—"Keep pushing"—in Blue, Yellow and Red—(the colors of the Order) led to the upper hall and lodge room. Entering, a beautiful sign "Our Silver Anniversary" greeted the eye—inscribed also was the date of the beginning of the lodge and the present year—an artistic production—while on either side of the lodge room was the names of the officers in 1890 and the officers of 1915—the handiwork of Messrs. Vinton and Southworth.

The rear wall of the hall was reserved for the Pythian Sisters who displayed a beautiful sign in silver letters, and a black background. Other decorations were Autumn leaves, while the stars and stripes were in evidence, back of the C. C. station. The portrait of O. Q. Ball, the first C. C. of the lodge, was surmounted by a triangle bearing the K. P. colors and the words—Friendship, Charity and Benevolence.

On the stroke of the 8 o'clock bell the grand officers escorted by the G. M. A. of Monatiquot lodge entered the hall and were welcomed by the C. C. in befitting words, after which they proceeded to dedicate the new quarters to Pythianism. A very impressive ceremony ended by a vocal solo by Mrs. A. Blunt. The "Silver Anniversary" exercises commenced by a welcome to all by C. C. G. H. Holbrook and in a few well chosen words gave a brief history of the lodge, its inception, its struggles, its loss by fire and its future prospectus. A solo by Mrs. A. Blunt, followed by an original poem—"Our Silver Anniversary" by Henry B. Vinton, prelate of the lodge, were vigorously applauded. A quartette of young men held the audience by their singing. This was followed by an address by Mrs. L. Woolforth of Whitman, Mrs. F. Thayer, M. E. C. of Pythias Temple 90, presented the lodge with a tray of silver.

A beautiful silk emblematic Pythian banner, the gift of Mrs. Louis F. Bates was presented by G. P. C. L. F. Garfield who eulogized the giver as a self made man of strict integrity and sterling worth, whose generosity was acknowledged by this gift. A stirring tribute to the banner by the prelate is herewith submitted.

BROTHERS:

Let us make this flag a stainless banner.

Let this old blue, yellow and red Free from shame and from dishonour By our F. C. B. be led—

Stainless banner, now, forever—

Let us fling it to the skies—

That our hearts may leap forever—

Where our Pythian banner flies.

Make it stainless in its beauty

Banner of the good and true

Lifting us a Pythian Order

Upward, onward, ever true

Stainless, spotless—in its beauty

Banner of friendship and of law

Beauteous banner of our Order

Let us round its symbols draw

Make this banner one of honor

Smirch it not by stain of wrong,

Lift it free of every blemish

Free from shame and from dishonour

In our Knightly band so strong

And when death—which is our portion

From this earth shall take us hence

Ever keep our motto's stainless Friendship, Charity and Benevolence.

At this point the prelate H. B. Vinton announced that as the matter of dedication and silver anniversary had become known, many of the friends of the late members of the Order were anxious to make contributions in memory of departed Knights, the Rev. Harry Grimes, on behalf of Mrs. W. W. Mayhew presented the lodge with a beautiful American flag in commemoration of her late husband, W. W. Mayhew; Mrs. Jennie Haskell a valuable lodge chair in memory of her father, F. D. Thayer and several

WEYMOUTH HEIGHTS VILLAGE IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

Supt. of Schools Pearson Addresses Gathering Last Friday Evening. Fare Increase Discussed.

At a meeting of the Village Improvement Society on Friday evening held in the Old North Chapel, Mr. Parker T. Pearson, Superintendent of Schools, spoke on the question of school accommodations for this community and also on the subject of transportation of pupils. In the questions and answers that followed he gave encouragement to the hope that an unused room in the Adams School would be utilized in the near future. He looked upon walking to and from school on the part of the pupils as better for them, the schools and the town than the system of transportation now in vogue. The transference of twelve pupils from the school in North Weymouth to a school in East Weymouth, he contended was in the interests of school economy. At this meeting the society took up the question of the proposed plan of the Bay State Street Railway to increase the fares and to establish two zones from East Weymouth to Quincy with Thomas' Corner as a terminal for each, and in this way calling for a fare of twelve cents instead of the present rate of five cents.

The president of the society, Mr. Elmer Lunt and the Rev. E. J. Yaeger were appointed to represent the society at a meeting of the Board of Selectmen to be held on Wednesday, October 27th.

A very interesting paper on "Items of Milton History" was read by Mrs. James H. Broughton of Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter D. A. R. of Wollaston. After the business meeting refreshments were served by the hostess and the members of the chapter were given an opportunity to examine many antique gowns, bonnets, books, dishes and other articles belonging to Miss Hobart.

THOMAS B. SEABURY AT REST.

Life Long Residence of North Weymouth Passes Away at Age of 78 Years.

Mr. Thomas B. Seabury passed away at his home on North street, North Weymouth, Tuesday the 19th after a short illness. Funeral services were held from his late home on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Charles Clark of the Pilgrim Church officiating. The interment was in the North Weymouth cemetery.

Mr. Seabury was born at Weymouth Heights, January 11, 1837. He attended the schools of Weymouth and also the Pierce Academy at Middleboro. When the state passed a law that towns the size of Weymouth should sustain a High school, he was one of the first to become a pupil of the local High school. By trade he was a shoemaker and for more than 50 years worked for the Torrey family who engaged in the boot and shoe business in North Weymouth. At the age of 14 he played the flute in the Pilgrim Congregational Church Orchestra and two years later when an organ was installed Mr. Seabury began his career as a chorister. For more than 55 years he was a member of the Pilgrim Church Choir, while during a quarter of a century he was its clerk. He served the Pilgrim parish as collector, clerk, music committee, treasurer 17 years. He was always a Republican and cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln. INCREASE OF FARES.

Much Information Gathered and Some Action Taken.

The adjourned joint meeting for discussion and action on the proposed advance of rates by the Bay State Street Railroad Company was held at the Town Office Wednesday evening.

At the original meeting E. W. Hunt chairman of the Board of Selectmen was elected chairman and Bradford Hawes as secretary and at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening the meeting was called to order with both of these men in their respective places.

The town was represented by the Selectmen; and the following organizations by good delegations; Board of Trade, North Weymouth, South Weymouth, Pond Plain, Weymouth Heights and Lovells Corner Improvement Societies and the Citizens' Association of Weymouth Landing.

Mr. Hunt called the meeting to order and asked for records of the first meeting which showed that Carmine Garafalo, A. P. Worthen and W. J. Holbrook had been appointed to gather statistics which might be of value and Mr. Garafalo reported for the committee that they had invited Division Superintendent Thomas Gammons to be present and explain the schedule and answer questions in regard to it.

Mr. Gammons took the stand and for more than an hour was kept under a fire of questions in answer to which he made plain many of the points at issue. The proposed change in minimum fare within certain zones is to be 6 cents while the maximum fare is to be 8 cents but no light was thrown on the question as to whether a passenger was to pay 6 cents at the start and then pay an additional 2 cents on receipt of a transfer.

The proposed change will make school tickets 1-2 the price of regular tickets and beyond town limits there is to be a marked advance, but varying in different localities.

Many questions were asked Mr. Gammons as to the relative savings and expenses of his district as compared to other districts of the system in fact some of them went so far that Mr. Garafalo felt called upon to come to Mr. Gammons' assistance and call down certain lines of questions not pertaining to the question of rates of fare.

After an hour or more of questions and answers Mr. Gammons was thanked for his work and took his leave.

The meeting now took a new start with the question, "What are we going to do about it?" Mr. Worthen, who had in his official capacity come in close touch with the street railway system, stated that the Bay State System has a trackage of 951 miles which is the largest in the world operated by one corporation and the increased tariff was not only a question of that corporation, but all others operating street railways. Individual towns and cities have taken hold of the matter but it must be joint work in handling it and should be put in the hands of a railroad expert, which will cost money, one town already having contributed $200 for the purpose. Mr. Worthen thought the town should join others and $100 would be a fair proportion of Weymouth's share.

After some discussion of the question by different members, Selectmen Burrell moved that the town appropriate $100 for investigation. Bradford Hawes, clerk of the board said the town had no fund from which it could be appropriated. Mr. Hanley objected to adding the $100 to the burdened taxpayers and suggested that the people who were able, go into their pockets for the desired sum. Mr. Hunt thought they could and should find a way out of it.

Members of the different organizations represented all thought joint action should be taken and the motion of Mr. Burrell prevailed.

Voted to ask the selectmen to request Mr. Whiting, engineer, to have the railroad track traced on the street lines of the town for use of the committee at a hearing before the Public Service Commission. At 10:30 adjourned to meet at the same place on the evening of Nov. 5th.

SECRET OF STEADY GOLF.

It Lies In Proper Use of the Club and Nerve Control.

There is no such thing for any man as eternal steadiness, but there is no reason why most golfers shouldn't develop a much greater steadiness than is shown. It is all a matter of practicing two things—the proper use of the club and concentration, or nerve control.

Remember at each practice or during each friendly round to try to make your brain work as well as your arms and legs. Remember, above all other factors, that it is vital to the success of the shot that you keep your head still, often referred to as "looking at the ball." Make it a point to school your brain as well as your muscles, for the brain is in control of the muscles. The golfer who can't concentrate, will never be able to develop steadiness, although he may be a fine shot maker and may be capable of some wonderful rounds.

So, to put a few suggestions into compact, concrete form, the following are offered to those who desire a change for the better in their golfing steadiness or unsteadiness:

First.—Practice concentration—keeping your mind on the ball as well as your eye.

Second.—Make up your mind to accept a bad lie or some bad luck as part of the game and to be expected.

British Torpedoes.

The torpedoes used in the British navy are of three diameters—14 inch, 18 inch, and 21 inch—and they vary in length from 16 feet to 18 feet. As soon as a torpedo hits its mark it explodes automatically. Every torpedo fired in action represents an expenditure of from $3,000 to $4,000.

Daily Thought.

They are such dear familiar feet that go along the path with us—feet fast or slow but trying to keep pace; if they mistake we must be mute, not turning to impute grave faults, for they and we have such a little way to go, can be together such a little while upon the way, we must be patient while we may.—George Klinge.

A Curious "Risk."

Nearly every business or occupation contributes bits of specialized knowledge to the common fund. It will strike most people as a curious piece of information that plate glass insurance companies class windows with black lettering on them as "extra hazardous" risks. The explanation given is that a black surface absorbs the sun's rays. By this means, it is pointed out, an unequal expansion is produced throughout the plate, and under the influence of a sudden gust of cold or any other quick change of temperature a strain is developed which may break the glass.

NEBRASKA IN THE LONG AGO.

What Is Now a Dry Plain Was Once the Bed of a Great Sea.

South of Platte river, opposite North Bend, Neb., the bluffs are conspicuous and consist of loess and glacial drift, overlying the Benton shale. This shale was formed when Nebraska was at the bottom of a sea. Evidence of the former presence here of sea water is found in the fossil shells of oysters and other animals that live in salt water and the bones of such sea monsters as the mosasaurus.

A comparison of these ancient conditions with those of the present day indicates the slow, continuous change that is now and always has been in progress. Where the tourist now travels comfortably over a dry plain these monsters sported in the water of the sea long ages ago. On the shores of this ancient sea lived equally strange beasts and birds of types that have long been extinct, and over its water sailed great flying dragons—the pterodactyls.

The animals of that day were strikingly different from those of the present. The birds, unlike any now living, had jaws armed with teeth. The monarchs of the air then were not in fact birds but flying reptiles, whose fore limbs had been modified into wings by the enormous elongation of fingers between which stretched thin membranes like the wings of a bat. These flying dragons, some of which had a stretch of eighteen feet, were carnivorous. They were animated engines of destruction that somewhat forcibly suggest the modern war airplanes, of which they were in a sense the prototypes.—Geological Survey Bulletin.

CORRECTED HIMSELF.

The Judge Made a Mistake and Was Quick to Admit It.

It was an action against an insurance company in a civil court to recover the value of a quartz mill that had been burned. The defendant introduced the former foreman of the mill, who testified that the plaintiff had admitted to him that he had set fire to the mill in order to get the insurance money.

The presiding judge knew the witness and had a very low opinion of his veracity. He also knew the plaintiff to be an honorable and upright man, wherefore he burst forth with the remark, "Everybody knows that to be a lie."

Whereupon the counsel for the insurance company sprang to his feet in a rage. "I object to the language of the court," said he, "and I demand that he be taken down and my objection entered in the record."

"Certainly, Colonel Brown," said the court. "You are quite right, and the court was altogether wrong in making such a remark. The court will endeavor to correct the effects of its inadvertence. Gentlemen of the jury, I instruct you that you must disregard my remark. You are the exclusive judges of the evidence and of the credibility of the witnesses, and it must have no weight with you that I commented as I did upon the fact that the witness told one of the most infernal lies that were ever uttered in a courtroom."—Case and Comment.

Placing His Kicks.

I do not wish to kick about this glad and smiling earth, for I have only landed here by circumstance of birth. I find it quite a pleasant place. I'm willing to remain. Please do not understand me as desiring to complain, and yet there are some changes I should like to recommend—not as a carping critic, but a calm, impartial friend.

The tropics are too beastly hot; the frigid zones too cold. Too much exertion is required to dig for iron and gold. The continents are far too large; the ocean's full of salt. The rocks and mountains constitute a very grievous fault. The scheme of raining water from an accidental cloud is wasteful, undependable and should not be allowed.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Unexpected.

"Before engaging rooms in your house," said the bachelor, "I want to know if there are any families with crying babies staying here."

"I'm afraid there is," replied the landlady, "but we"—

"Well, I was just going to say," continued the other, "that if there are I want you to put me in the room next to theirs. I want to wake up in the night and hear their trouble, so that I can congratulate myself again that I'm not married."—London Telegraph.

A Correct Diagnosis.

There was a sudden loud report, and Wiggles brought his car to a standstill.

"Mercy!" cried Mrs. Wiggles. "What was that? It sounded like a revolver." "It was," said Wiggles wearily. "It was our off hind wheel. It has stopped revolving."—Pittsburgh Press.

Superior.

Tourist—You must get some business here, advertising "All the Comforts of Home For One Dollar." Rural Landlord—We did until the fellow opposite opened up with "None of the Discomforts of Home For Two Dollars."—Boston Journal.

Accounting For It.

"I wonder why barbers are generally such sociable men." "I suppose it is because they find it so easy to scrape an acquaintance."—Baltimore American.

Be brief, for it is with words as with sunbeams—the more they are condensed the deeper they burn.—Holmes.

The Signal Of the Rose

A Girl Who Had Everything She Wanted

By AGNES G. BROGAN

David Bourne turned from the wild commotion of the "pit," with its babel of high keyed voices, and passed out into the morning sunshine. "So old Richards has won again." Failure seemed a word unknown to this wizard in the world of finance. How did he do it? What "god of fortune" waited upon this great speculator, giving him infallibly the proper cue? And what new extravagance would this later victory bestow upon Paula—Paula, the daughter of whom her father so proudly boasted, "She shall have everything she wants?"

"The girl who has everything she wants," Bourne thought of her now as he strode along, and an inner light passed over his features, erasing all weariness. It had been a mistaken kindness upon the part of the dotting father, carrying out this humble clerk in his employ to spend delightful days at his famous home on the Hudson. Had it been an intentional kindness, David wondered gloomily, or merely the insatiable desire of the man to impress another with his greatness? And the daughter, who was beautiful, had also been kind. David pictured her now moving with a sort of stately dignity, her little dusky head held high, her rare and radiant smile. And she had done justice to the generous advantage of her training; her touch upon the piano was a joy, her voice a charm to be remembered.

David sighed abruptly. "The girl who has everything she wants." He recalled half bitterly the luxury of her surroundings, the rich draperies which hung about her slender figure, the little jeweled fingers—Paula Richards, only daughter of the king of finance—and he, David Bourne, loved her. Sometimes he had fancied a tenderness in the girl's eyes upraised to his, a wistfulness answering to his own unspoken longing. But David put these dreams resolutely from him. He even laughed contemptuously as he squared his shoulders.

"You poor simpleton!" he breathed. Still it was growing—the little hoard in the bank—growing, oh, so slowly, with such painful self sacrificing, with almost hopeless desperation. Yet there were times when the hopelessness vanished, and David smoked on in his plunge, his first venture in the pit of the Stock Exchange. And if he were successful, if he could follow the lead of his great employer, if his money should come back increased a hundredfold, why, then she might be his and still continue to be "the girl who had everything she wanted." Until then he must worship at her feet as long as she should be kind.

She met him that evening with her usual sweet gravity. He had always admired this pretty seriousness, lightened by her rare smile. Tonight the smile seemed more rare than ever. She glanced at him with concern.

"You are tired," said Paula, "or troubled."

David laughed shortly. "Troubled, I think," he replied. "Will you play for me?"

With her characteristic understanding the girl seated herself at the piano. Throughout the "Love Symphony" he wondered wildly if a millionaire's daughter might not possibly find happiness in a small apartment, if romance might not be made to atone for the absence of a retinue of servants, if and if—A song of Caruso's brought him back to the opera and Paula there in her father's box, with her people of her kind.

"Paula," he cried abruptly. The girl quietly arose and stood before him. David pointed a tentative finger at the diamonds upon her hands. "You love those things?" he asked.

"Why, of course," she answered, wondering. "I love everything beautiful." She smiled at the roses upon her breast. "I cover myself with roses, and I cover myself with jewels."

"And you may have for the wishing anything which money can buy?"

Paula nodded. "Yes," she said.

David jumped to his feet. "If I could say that," he cried, "I'd be the happiest man in the world!"

Her voice came to him softly, "Is there something, then, that you wish for so very much?"

He laughed shakily. "The moon, I think," said David.

"And," she persisted, "would money purchase this particular moon of yours?"

"Perhaps not," he answered, "but it would at least give me a chance to try." Passionately he swung around upon her. "I'm quite mad tonight, Paula," he said tentatively. "You and your music have sent me up into a fool's paradise of hope. I want to tell you something, not of my love for you; you have always known that. Your father's success has got into my blood. I've thought that if I could make one deal like his today I'd dare to voice the longing that's consuming my heart. I have been able to save a little money, and—and I'm going to make a plunge. If by any glorious chance it should win out I'll try again and again. If it doesn't"—David paused—"then I'll say goodbye to you a little sooner. That's all."

Paula motioned him to a seat at her side. Her eyes had taken on a strange, calculating glint, which reminded Bourne sorely of her father. When she spoke her tone was calm and impersonal, like his.

"If you succeed," she asked, "do you intend to ask me to marry you?" David nodded dumbly. "Then," she went on, "I am naturally interested. You have heard my oft given name, 'The girl who has everything she wants.' You will first understand that I wish to keep that name."

David was conscious of a keen thrill of disappointment. "I am merely honest," the girl nodded, with a smile to remove the sting from her words. "So," she continued hastily, "I ask a favor. Will you let me give you a 'tip' before you make this plunge? I mean," she replied to his look of amazement, "to get information from my father which I shall immediately pass on to you." An inscrutable smile played about the girl's lips. "Old man Richards cannot fail," she quoted.

David stared, wondering that the knowledge that she wished him to win should be so unpleasantly overwhelmed by the fact of her shrewd plan. "A balcony runs across one end of the exchange," she went on. "Father and I shall be there. You must stand beneath, and at the psychological moment"—A flush of excitement dyed her cheeks; her eyes shone. "I shall drop a red rose," she said. "And I," David answered slowly, "shall stake my all at the falling of that rose." Paula held her hands out to him. "If you are honest in your wish for the moon," she smiled, "you must trust me."

"Trust you I will. Now tell me what is your tip. Am I to sell short or long? What is the security to be put up or down? Is it to be manipulated by a pool or an individual?"

"I don't know what you mean by all this," replied Paula, "though I have heard father talk about 'pools' and 'squeezing the shorts' and all such unintelligible things. I only know that I asked him as a favor to me to tell me where there was a chance to make some money and how to proceed. He has told me to sell M. O. P. What that is I don't know."

"I do. Goodbye." And he turned to go.

Impulsively she followed him to the door. "And, remember, if by chance my signal should fail"—she paused breathlessly—"well, I'm like my father," said Paula. "I'm 'game.' I'll marry you to atone."

"Marry him!" With a contradictory sense of joy and pain David went homeward through the night. When at her hasty summons he stood again in the "pit," the hurrying messengers, the darting, uncanny figures on the walls, seemed all part of a dream. Paula alone was real, Paula in the balcony with a crimson rose at her breast. With fixed intensity he watched her face, forgetting to return her smile. A moment's cessation in the babel seemed like the sudden silence preceding a storm; then swiftly, noiselessly, a red rose fell at his feet. An instant it lay crushed and fragrant. David was calling wildly for a messenger. Blindly his pencil flew across the paper, and here in the tiny folded scrap were the tireless savings of years.

When he looked up again she was gone. Like one dazed, he rushed through the streets. "Old man Richards cannot fail," he repeated, "and tomorrow—tomorrow"—When "tomorrow" came he sat before his humble desk in the great man's office. Beneath David's eyes were the dark circles of a sleepless night. About his mouth were lines which had not been there yesterday. Mechanically he reached for the telephone; then the blood surged to his face. "Yes," he answered, with difficulty, "I recognize your voice, Miss Richards, but I fear that the engagement for this evening must be canceled. You are aware, of course, that the signal failed, the signal of the rose." And Paula replied evenly, "I would like to see you, David, and shall expect you tonight at 8."

There was a bright happiness about the girl's greeting which, in face of his great disappointment, caused David's heart to contract painfully.

"The signal failed," he said dully. "Do you suppose that your father suspected your purpose and sought to frustrate it?"

Paula's eyes met his steadily. "I deliberately acted against my father's advice," she told him. "I gave you the only signal which could be the right signal, if you wanted me."

With unexpected passion she threw out her hands. "Do you think," she cried, "that I wanted you to be drunk with the wine of triumph, to win and go on winning money until you became the hard thing that he has become? Do you think that I want to live through the life that my mother found too hard to bear? Do you think that I could be satisfied forever with mere 'things' purchased for me by a love which had turned to a 'love of gain'?" Her voice broke tremulously. "The girl who has everything she wants," she mocked, "when all my life I have wanted the one thing which money can't buy."

"Paula," David began, his voice hushed in the presence of this unbelievable joy, "surely it could not be right for me to accept your great sacrifice."

From the coils of her hair came tumbling a flower to rest there at his feet. Laughing, she raised her eyes to his. "Oh, don't you see," cried Paula, "it's your signal, David—a crimson rose!" Then very tenderly and very reverently the man took her into his arms.

FRIDAY, OCT. 29, 1915

The Gazette & Transcript is printed and mailed Friday afternoons, and is for sale at all News-stands in the Weymouths and at the South Terminal, Boston.

All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.

Male voters in Philadelphia handed a pretty severe jolt to the contention that the welfare of the women will be best looked after by leaving their interests in the exclusive possession of the gallantry and chivalry of the male sex, the first of the week. A parade of male voters on its way to a political rally came upon a gathering of suffrage advocates listening to a speaker. The Roman candles the men carried were turned into the suffrage assemblage and balls of fire fell upon the women's clothing in showers. The cowardly attack ended with the males throwing buckets of water from second story windows onto the women below. Woman suffrage will never be defeated in this manner as such actions as the Philadelphia voters carried out will be resented by fair-minded people. The ladies deserve a fair and square deal and in this state at least, it appears that thus far, they are getting it.

This is the last issue of the Gazette & Transcript before the election. On Tuesday next the dropping of the ballot should be the absorbing occupation of all the voters in Massachusetts, and Weymouth is still a part of the old Bay State.

In their official capacity the Selectmen perambulated the town lines last week and found them the same as they were nearly three hundred years ago but while the lines are the same the population has materially changed.

There are now more thousands of people in town than there were hundreds then and a proportional increase of voters and we might almost add a proportional increase in sentiment, facts and issues at stake. There however is this one fact that on Tuesday next there can be but one class elected and it behooves every voter to study carefully the ballot and vote for those men who can be elected to further the best interest of the town, state and even the Nation.

Let us illustrate: There are on the ballot six candidates for governor and no candid man can but believe that there is not a ghost of a show for four of them, consequently the question narrows itself down to two. Make your choice and elect the best man of the two.

Rix - Bates.

On Wednesday evening, in the M. E. church parlors, East Weymouth, Miss Mildred Lovell Bates of Cottage street, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lovell B. Bates and Arthur George Rix, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Rix of 402 Main street, South Weymouth were united in marriage by Rev. William M. Newton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. The ceremony, the single ring, was performed at 8 o'clock.

William J. Rix of South Weymouth, a brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Maude V. Ellis of Ashmont was bridesmaid. The bride wore a dress of white embroidered voile, her veil was held in place with lilies of the valley, she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid's dress was of yellow, trimmed with white and she carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held until 10 o'clock. The couple were assisted in receiving by William J. Rix and Miss Maude V. Ellis. The ushers were A. Preston Packard of Brockton and Roy Gooch of Easton, Mass.

The couple were married beneath an arch of hemlock and yellow chrysanthemums and the room was tastefully decorated in yellow and white. Miss Olive D. Sylvester played the wedding march and Miss Marjorie Keith furnished the music during the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Rix left for a few days' trip to Bradford, Vermont, where they will visit Mrs. Bastow, the groom's grandmother.

Region of High Winds.

Probably nowhere else does the wind blow so hard and steadily as in the Falkland Islands. Tree growth is practically impossible owing to this peculiarity, and with such force does the wind sweep that region at times that potatoes and turnips have been known to be blown out of the ground. Grass, however, grows luxuriantly.

—Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thomas are spending a week with friends in North Chelmsford, Mass.

—The Universalist Men's club held their regular business meeting and supper on Monday evening of this week. At 7:45 o'clock a very pleasing menu was served by Mrs. Samuel Drew, Mrs. Frank N. Kittredge, Miss Lillian Ruggles and Miss Bertha Dunbar. A short business meeting followed the supper after which Capt. Frederick G. Bauer of South Weymouth gave a very interesting address on the subject: "Lessons for the United States from the European War" during which he spoke in favor of "preparedness."

CARD OF THANKS

The scythe of time has severed the thread which for many years connected husband and father to our homes and every day life. His departure is a great loss and yet there has come to us a large conception of the meaning of the words, "friends and neighbors" and we take this opportunity to thank all those whose ready hands and kind words have been to us such a help and consolation.

MRS. THOMAS B. SEABURY,
CHARLES L. SEABURY,
WILLIAM T. SEABURY.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the many patrons from all parts of Weymouth and surrounding towns, who helped to make the One Cent Sale at the Rexall Store, last week, a huge success. The liberal patronage was highly appreciated and I hope to merit a continuance of the same.

GEORGE R. KEMPL,
Washington square, Weymouth.

Means Hard Work.

"Tryin' to help a man dat can't help hisself," said Uncle Eben, "is very often like tryin' to play mule fob a mighty poor driver."

LOVELL'S CORNER

—The Ladies' Aid met for work with Mrs. Annie Newcomb, Tuesday afternoon.

—Osborne P. Nash, 71 years of age, an inspector in the Chelsea water department for many years and a veteran of the civil war, passed away at his summer home, 83 Seaver road, Westwood Grove, Sunday. He was a member of Theodore Winthrop Post, G. A. R. of Chelsea, and for 25 years had been its quartermaster. He leaves a widow and a son, Judge Howard P. Nash of New York. Funeral services were held in G. A. R. hall, Chelsea.

High School Notes.

Ralph Talbot a former student at Weymouth high has become a member of the cross country team at Mercersburg Academy.

Today the students of Weymouth and surrounding towns are enjoying a holiday because of the sixty-ninth annual convention of the Norfolk County Teacher's association now in session at the Plymouth theatre, Boston.

Miss Alice Fulton, has joined the High school orchestra as the only member now playing the flute.

The nominating committee of the Junior class have elected Charles Palmer, president; Wallace Whittle, vice-president; George Curtin, secretary and John Gannon, treasurer. These offices are held throughout the Junior and Senior years, thus allowing the men to become fully acquainted with their respective positions as leaders of their class.

Last Friday Mr. Cosgrove, who is now teaching in Waterbury, Connecticut, returned to visit his former pupils at Weymouth high.

Don't forget, Rockland vs. Weymouth at Rockland this (Friday) afternoon.

The newly formed "Senior Girls Literary Club" held their long postponed meeting last Monday afternoon in the High School hall. Miss Rosamond Cuniff, Miss Annie Welsh and Miss Elsie Bergen were elected to prepare a program for the next meeting.

DON'T MISTAKE THE CAUSE.

Many Weymouth People Have Kidney Trouble and Do Not Know It.

Do you have backache?
Are you tired and worn out?
Feel dizzy, nervous and depressed?
Are the kidney secretions irregular?
Highly colored; contain sediment?
Likely your kidneys are at fault.
Weak kidneys give warning of distress.
Heed the warning; don't delay—
Use a tested kidney remedy.
Read this Weymouth testimony.

B. W. Hewett, 191 Washington street, Weymouth, says: "I was annoyed by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions. I also had backache and couldn't straighten up. I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and the trouble disappeared. In my work I have to bend over constantly and thus far, I have had no return of the trouble". (Statement given March 24th, 1913). Over Two Years Later, Mr. Hewett added: "My former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. Since then Doan's Kidney Pills have given good results whenever I have had occasion to tune up my kidneys."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hewett had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Right Side of Serge.

When determining the right side of serge or any other goods in which there are diagonal lines in the weave these lines should run from the upper right-hand corner to the lower left-hand corner on the right side.

Mold on Books.

During continued damp weather books often become musty and even moldy. This can be prevented by placing a few drops of oil of lavender and Canada balsam in the back corner of each bookshelf.

checks from friends whose names are withheld by request.

The evening's entertainment closed by the "Konomical Spellin" of P. C.
Clarence W. Fearing of "An Abominable Bumble Bee With His Tail Cut Off," which caused many a laugh.

By request of many Weymouth members of the order who were unable to be present at the gathering, we publish the Silver Anniversary poem written by H. B. Vinton.

OUR SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Of what significance is this
This span of twenty-five years?
Do memories fade so fast as this—
Of these silver anniversary years?
What thoughts of the long ago arise—
What memories bring us tears
What reminiscences can the mind grasp
Of these long, happy years?

Do you recall the name of Ball Onslow, his first name was O Q Ball—the "Little Oil Man"
Was redubbed by one and all
'Twas he that started this good lodge
One quarter century ago.

Tonight his virtues and memory we extol
And praises give to the "Little Oil Man" O Q Ball.

Look you upon his picture there Hanging on the wall—
Can we forget this little man O Q Ball?
Yes, small in stature tho he was
His great heart beat for one and all
His photograph we reverence—
With Friendship, Charity and Benevolence.

Now let us turn a silver page,
And open to our view
The name of Elmer Morrison appears Late member of our crew,
Delighted he, when he could bestow
Of favors, not a few.

For on piano or on organ
His nimble fingers flew
And music such as is seldom heard
He brought us safely through His memory is fresh tonight
As fresh as the morning dew
And ever may we keep it so
And those old times good and true.

Once more let us our records scan—
For a name not hard to find
The name of Woodward stands out bold
As boldly as it can.

With confidence he took the chairs
Our By-laws to construe
And well did he conduct affairs
And brought us safely through
But he has gone to his long home
And looking down tonight
He sees us Boys—what's left of us,
On this our Festive night.

Our Drill Master was Walter M.
And with his brother Fred
And Alfred Southworth in the team
Our Degree Staff was finely led.
And many names could I recall
Of brothers brave and true,
But I must hasten on a bit
Lest I do weary you.

Can we forget our loss by fire
On that cold, bitter night
In January nineteen hundred twelve,
Ah! such a sorry plight.
We scarce a souvenir did save,
But Friends—we have them here Gave us the grasp of Friendship's hand

And bid us all Good Cheer,
And we have struggled on since then
I'm happy to relate,
And tonight we're here, because we're here

This hall to dedicate.
'Twas twenty-five years ago this week,
Which we remember yet
When Delphi put us through the third,
And they did it well, you bet.
The Weymouth Boys were on the job
They did their work complete
And the Monaquot Boys that night Complained of some sore feet.

Now let us all renew our vows
And keep our pledges true,
And this anniversary night
Shall bring kind thoughts to you.

Thou too sail on Oh Pythians great
In every Union—every State, Then Humanity—(don't forget the word)
Then Humanity and all that's good Shall constitute our brotherhood

Macedonian Opium Best.
Macedonia grows the richest opium of all countries. The export of crude opium from the Saloniki district to this country ranks second to tobacco in value. The product is used solely in the manufacture of morphine and is not the quality used for smoking.

Light for Sick Room.
To shade the electric light in a sick-room or in a child's sleeping room, make a bag of green china silk, large enough to slip over the light, shade and all. Put in drawing string to tie it on. This will soften the light wonderfully.

A Line of Defense.
The adjective "beautiful," as applied to man, may prompt the indignant male to grow chin whiskers in order to suppress it.

LIGHTING OUR LIVES.

Lines Along Which Physicians of the Future May Work.

Some day there will be a new physician who will be part engineer and part medical student. He will ask you no personal questions, and his prescriptions will be filled by a dealer in lamps and lighting fixtures; yet he is a man who can cure the world of half its gronchiness and ill temper.

The new doctor will investigate your home from the standpoint of lighting efficiency. Have you enough or too much light? Is the wall paper soothing to your eyes, yet economical from the standpoint of lighting efficiency, or does the color of it and its figures cut your nerves like a ragged edged knife?

Medicine men have said that many a murder has been the result of a glaring incandescent light and red wall paper. When the denizen of a flat building curses the pianist across the way his ill temper may be caused by his desk light and not by the piano at all. The eye can stand less abuse than the ear, and were it in repose the gronch would probably fail to notice the doubtful music. The lighting doctor probably will find the cause of that gronch and remove it.

Instead of a stethoscope he will use an illuminometer. The illuminometer is a device to tell in figures just how bright the light on your book is as you sit and read. It is used by lighting engineers, municipal lighting departments, building inspectors and others for determining the brightness of natural or artificial illumination. Portable, easily and quickly used and utilizing the familiar methods of measurement, it is a complete outfit for making photometric measurements.—Technical World.

NATURE AND THE MICROBE.

How the Nose and the Stomach Fight Disease Germs.

The thoughtful reader will say, "Surely, in the battle of man against microbe there must be some natural means of defense by which men have conquered in the past, long before the microscope was invented." He is right, and science is never better employed than in studying these natural defenses. For example, we find no microbes at all in air just after it passes through the healthy nose. The nose is the original "domestic filter" for all microbes in dust in the air. Its secretions are antiseptic also, and man has no more valuable outwork of defense than a normal nose. A choked nose, through which a person cannot breathe, means that microbes enter the lungs freely by way of the filterless mouth.

In the stomach we find free hydrochloric acid, produced some half hour or less after a meal. Its production from the common salt, or sodium chloride, of the blood by the living cells that line the stomach is one of the wholly inimitable feats of the body. Until recently most of us thought that the hydrochloric acid was formed in the stomach solely in order to digest food, but now we have evidence to show that this hydrochloric acid is also a valuable antiseptic, working, for once, inside the body without hurting it and probably often saving us from the microbes of consumption and typhoid fever.

Thus the two great avenues of entry to the body are in a large degree guarded. It may be added that no known microbe can, unaided, penetrate the surface of the unbroken and healthy skin.—Dr. C. W. Saleeby in Youth's Companion.

EVOLUTION OF SHORTHAND.

Modern Stenography Had Its Start in the Time of Cicero.

To the average person the idea of shorthand writing is generally considered as being modern, because of the rapidity with which it has been introduced into business life in this country. This is not the case, however, for history traces the use of a similar art with definiteness back to the time of Cicero, about 70 B. C. The invention is sometimes credited to Cicero and sometimes to his secretary, Tullius Tiro.

Nothing seems to be known of any other system of shorthand during the Greek or Roman ascendancy nor for fifteen centuries afterward. The first of the noted systems at the beginning of the present era of shorthand was that of Timothy Bright, whose treatise was dedicated to Queen Elizabeth. In 1600 Peter Bales brought out a system similar in some respects to Bright's, but which was difficult to memorize.

The next system to indicate progress appeared twelve years later, by John Willis, which was called "The Art of Stenography or Short Writing by Spelling Characteristic." Then came Edward Willis, Jeremiah Rich, William Mason, Thomas Gurney, as well as many others. All of these systems had many defects, and the entire idea was rejuvenated when in the early part of the nineteenth century Isaac Pitman, who afterward was knighted, presented his system, which is still in use and which has been the foundation for most of the systems now practiced.—Exchange.

Sting of the Jellyfish.
The stinging threads of the common jellyfish are not strong enough to pierce the ordinary human skin, but Mr. S. F. Light, in describing Philippine medusae, notes that the sting of the tentacles is very dangerous. Swelling and inflammation begin almost immediately, blisters form, the heart action is impaired, respiratory spasms and nervous twitchings of the muscles ensue, and there is intense general pain. The natives of Palawan reported that the sting may be fatal. The native remedy is sugar solution taken internally and applications of vinegar externally.—London Globe.

Import Half a Million Birds.
About 500,000 live birds are imported to the United States every year, including about 1,500 species, of which canaries, parrots and game birds are the most numerous. No birds can be imported without a permit from the department of agriculture, which issues about 500 a year.—New York World.

"You mean to the bottom."
"No, I don't; this boat's a submarine."—Boston Transcript.

His Claim an Empty One.
"Isn't it funny how Bounderby delights in claiming he's a self made man?"
"Yes, and there's nothing in it. His wife selects his clothes, his mother-in-law regulates his hours and his wife's sister supervises his manners."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Hog Item.

An Apparition

A Story of the Great European War

By F. A. MITCHEL

During one of the incursions of the Russian armies into German territory a general, passing the estate of a noble, said to one of his aids:

"Captain Ivanovich, I wish you to remain here till you get further orders from me. Take half a dozen couriers from my escort, and whenever you see or hear of any movement of the enemy send me word immediately."

Captain Ivan Ivanovich left the staff, directed the commander of the escort to detail six men to attend him and, followed by them, rode into the grounds of the house, which was set upon an eminence and commanded a view of the surrounding country. Dismounting at the main entrance, he went up on to the porch and rapped loudly on the door with the hilt of his sword. An old man appeared, who seemed to be a major domo, and the captain said to him:

"I desire quarters here for awhile for myself and my men."

The old man invited him in, telling him that the family, on the appearance of foreign troops, had left the premises in his care and gone elsewhere.

The captain chose a room for himself on the second floor and quartered his men in the basement, for Ivan Ivanovvich, being a noble himself and a refined man, felt disposed to treat the place as he would wish his father's estate far back in Russia to be treated if the fortunes of war should bring about its occupation by the enemy.
Having thus taken possession of his quarters, he asked the major domo, Peter, if there was anything to eat in the house. Peter said that there was, but no one except himself to cook it.
But, since he had been a chef, he could get up a meal of such provisions as were in the house. The captain directed him to prepare breakfast for him and give the men such supplies as they needed.

Having refreshed himself, Captain Ivanovich went out on the porch, which extended entirely around the house, and made the circuit, now and again raising a pair of binoculars to examine the rising smoke here, a flag there, a strong position on the crest of the hill —anything, in short, that might be of military importance. There was no flag in sight except the Russian imperial standard, and the captain, lowering his glasses, went back into the house.
Being free to use the library, he took down a book and, being a student as well as a soldier, was soon lost in its contents.

The next morning it occurred to him that a cupola that topped the house would afford him a better view of the surroundings, and he started to go up there for the purpose. Finding the door leading from the second floor to the third locked, he called to Peter for the key.

"I haven't the key, excellency," said Peter. "When the family left the premises they placed articles valuable only to themselves, such as papers and heirlooms, on the floor above, locked the door and took the key with them."

Ivanovich could have forced the door;
but, as has been said, he was a refined man, unfitted for the barbarous side of war, so he concluded to be content with the view he could get from the porch. Quite likely he was also influenced by the earnest look on Peter's face, which indicated anxiety that he should not intrude on the floor where the family heirlooms and archives had been stored.

One night while Ivanovich was lying awake he heard a sound without his room, in a large open space, through which ran a massive stairway. Soldiers in an enemy's country are naturally on the lookout for danger, and, taking his pistol from under his pillow, he got out of bed and walked noiselessly on his bare feet to the door, which was ajar, and peeped out. A surprising sight met his view.

Bright moonlight was streaming in through a large window at the head of the staircase and dimly illuminated what at first the captain conceived to be an angel. It was a female figure robed in white. It was standing as if to listen. The face was sufficiently lighted to indicate that it was that of a young girl. On second thought Ivanovvich believed that the figure was one of flesh and blood wearing a nightgown and walking in sleep.

The figure presently started on, descended the staircase and disappeared in the darkness. Ivanovich, too honorable to follow, remained where he was, thinking that probably the girl would return. His anticipation was realized.
She reappeared holding something in her hand, though the watcher could not see what it was. Ascending to the door opening on the third story, she passed in and closed it behind her. Ivanovich listened and heard a faint sound, like the grating of a bolt moving in a lock.

There was no doubt in the captain's mind that this girl was ensconced on the floor above and that Peter knew of her presence there. Who she was, whether any one else was with her, he knew not. He resolved to keep his own counsel, at least for awhile. It was evident that a woman was hiding on the floor above, and he did not conceive it to be his duty to disturb her.
Indeed, he had already been sickened by the horrors of war and ready to shield any of its victims even among his country's foes.

But Captain Ivanovich thereafter kept his eyes and ears open. He walked around the house, looking up at the windows. The blinds were all closed, and there was not a sign of life to be seen. "After all," he said to himself,
"I wonder if I could have dreamed it."

However, Ivanovich repudiated this idea. He had seen a figure robed in white descend the staircase, return and disappear through the door leading to the floor above. Of this he was certain, and the absence of any appearance of life there did not convince him that he was in error.

Soon after the appearance of the mysterious figure the captain's attention was diverted from its consideration by the appearance of a large force of the enemy to the southeast. He dispatched a courier to find the general, if possible, and later, hearing heavy firing and seeing columns of smoke in the same direction, he dispatched another courier with another message.

These matters having been attended to, the young captain's mind again reverted to the mystery of the upper story. He said nothing to his men about the matter, fearing that if he did he would excite a desire on their part to investigate, whereas if there were any investigating to be done he preferred to do it himself. One day one of the troopers came to him and told him that he had better leave his quarters, for the man was sure the house was haunted. He had seen in the middle of the night a figure clad in white standing at an upper window.
The superstitious Russian, having considered the third story vacant, naturally regarded the figure at the window as a wraith. Ivanovich told him that the figure he had seen must have been an illusion, but failed to convince him.

There was a hillside back of the house, covered by trees. Ivanovich went out there with his binoculars and remained a long while, watching what was going on. The distance was too great for him to gain much knowledge of any value, but he kept his watch till satisfied that it was useless, then turned and was emerging from the wood, when, casting an eye at a window on the third story of the house, he saw standing there a young girl looking at what he had been observing.

This time the sun was shining full in her face, and the captain saw not only that she was comely, but there was on her features that anxiety which is so touching in the young. Realizing that if she saw she was discovered it would add to her distress, he remained in concealment till she withdrew, closing the window.

That face, once seen by moonlight and again by sunlight, produced a vivid impression on Ivan Ivanovich. It floated before him during the day, and at night he saw the wraithlike figure descending the staircase. It was evident that a girl was hiding, and it was possible that there was some other cause for suffering than fear of an enemy.
The location was German Poland, and Peter had told him that the residents of the house were Poles. But in wartime one is as likely to be plundered by friends as enemies.

One night Ivanovich heard quick footsteps overhead. Getting out of bed and putting on some of his clothing, he went out and listened at the door leading to the third story. He heard signs of something happening above. Then the door was unlocked and a woman—
this time dressed in ordinary apparel—came out and met him face to face.
She turned to go back, but Ivanovich said:

"You have nothing to fear from me.
Tell me if there is anything I can do for you."

Having been thus given confidence, the girl revealed the mystery. When the Russians appeared in the region her mother, herself and her brother, aged seventeen, a wounded conscript in the German army, expecting to be murdered, retreated to the third story, leaving Peter to deceive, if possible, whoever might come. They had taken provisions with them and would have got on had it not been for the wounded boy, who was deprived of medical care.

The night she had appeared on the staircase she was going below for a bottle of medicine which a surgeon had left for the use of the invalid. On this her second appearance her brother was much worse, and she was trying to steal out with a view to getting medical advice as to what to do for him. She closed her explanation with pleading that Ivanovich should not make her brother a prisoner, for if deprived of her and her mother's tender care he would surely die.

The captain, having assured her that, though an enemy, he had a heart, went below and ordered one of his men to find a surgeon and bring him there at once. Then he went upstairs and found the mother and the wounded boy, whose fears he allayed. They were comfortable so far as their quarters were concerned, and he ordered Peter to bring them properly prepared food.
A surgeon arrived in due time and treated the wounded boy, who began at once to improve.

A week passed after the unveiling of the mystery before Captain Ivanovich and his men were withdrawn from their quarters. During this week the young officer by his consideration for his captors secured the good will of the mother and the son and a more tender response from the girl. When he left her there was an interview between them, the result of which was known only to themselves, though there can be but little doubt that they referred to what might be when the war should be over and peace should return to take the place of one of those periodic returns to barbarism to which the world has thus far been subject.

A CLEAR CUT ISSUE

SAMUEL W. McCALL—

"You have this day adopted a forward-looking platform which meets my full approval and upon which I squarely stand. We welcome the co-operation of that splendid body of men who have as leaders, Charles Sumner Bird and Joseph Walker. The men who think alike upon the great questions of government will, I believe, vote alike this year, and with no side issues, we shall triumphantly carry the election in November. Such a result will be big with fate to the prosperity of our commonwealth!"—In his speech of acceptance of the nomination for governor at the Republican state convention, Tremont Temple, Boston, October 2, 1915.

CHARLES SUMNER BIRD—

"The issue is unmistakable. On November 2, the voter must decide whether New England industries, Massachusetts workmen and workwomen are willing to risk four more years of Democratic attack upon business, four more years of tariff tinkering and uncertainty.

"It is as I see it, vital that the Democratic national administration's attitude toward New England interests should be condemned in the most emphatic fashion at the coming election."—In a speech at Attleboro, October 22, 1915.

U. S. SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE—

"The choice at the coming election lies between the Republican and the Democratic parties. There can be no other. We must decide which one of these two parties the conditions of the times and the safety and welfare of the United States alike demand. The traditions, the general principles and the broad policies of the Republican party have always commanded the support of the people of Massachusetts. Massachusetts is now, as she always has been, a Republican state.

"I cannot believe that in the presence of the grave, the overmastering issues of the present time, any Republicans will be found who will vote on side issues in such a way as to secure the victory of that party which is most hostile to the reforms they have at heart."—In a letter addressed to Samuel W. McCall, October 22, 1915.
